STAYS ON LOST SHIP

OFFICER HEROIC AS SHIP SINKS

NEW BEDFORD Mass April 30.—A tale of heroism at sea, and of a quartermaster who went sailing down with his ship, frozen to the bridge, was told today when survivors of the ill-fated Seaconnet, which sank almost without trace in a seventy mile hurricane were brought here in a light ship tender

The Seaconnet, a collier out of Norfolk, Boston bound, was plowing north in a sea lashed to a fury by a gale. The vessel was unable to stand the wracking and sprang a leak

Then began a desperate battle with the pumps against death that came closer with each additional inroad of the seas Working in relays the vessel's crew lost slowly but steadily in their efforts to keep the Seaconnet afloat.

The crew was ordered to the boats, of which there were but three. One of these was washed away by a comber, and a second skidded down a smokestack guy wire into the boiling sea when the Seaconnet listed heavily to starboard.

Waves began breaking with irresistible force over the deck, carrying one of the crew after another overboard until at one time thirteen struggled in the water Some were picked up and hurled back on board, buffeted terribly

One lifeboat was lowered safely and another righted

On the bridge as the Seaconnet settled, stood Capt. Dan Miller and John Santiago, the quartermaster.

In less than thirty minutes after the first leak was sprung, the Seaconnet took its deathplunge Captain Miller, motioning to Santiago to follow, leaped and was rescued

"The last I saw of John, he was standing there on the bridge deathly pale, gripping the wheel" Captain Miller said. "He appeared to be frozen in his tracks He went to his death with blue lips fixed in a set smile, sucked down into the swirl along with the Seaconnet"

Six others were missing, but a lifeboat containing the captain and twenty-two survivors, one a woman, reached a light ship and later were brought ashore.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY AT IOWA TOWN

MAQUOKETA, Ia., April 30.—Chester Correll, son of the late Abe Correll, early this morning shot and seriously wounded his wife and mother-in-law and then killed himself by shooting.

A few years ago when his father passed away, he, together with two brothers: Roy, now of Chicago and Alfred of Maquoketa inherited a large amount of property It is said that he went thru his property in a short time. At that time he was said to have threatened to kill his wife, formerly Pearl Curtis, and was put in jail for fifteen days on account of the threat. When he was released, his wife took her two small children, Curtis and Robert and left his home to live with her mother and step father, Mr and Mrs eGorge Gibson. She has been there for about two years.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Correll attended the Baptist church and neighbors noticed that during the service Mr Correll paced back and forth in front of the building in a very peculiar manner His actions were noticed as being unusual. Early this morning he went to the home of Mr and Mrs. Gibson and see Mrs. Gibson in the garden, shot at her. The bullet went thru her jaw and at 9 a. m. she was still in an unconscious condition. After shooting Mrs Gibson, he then proceeded to the kitchen where his wife was preparing breakfast and shot her thru the head, afterwards turning the gun on himself with fatal effect.

COUNTY RECORDS LOST IN FIRE

COURT HOUSE BURNS DOWN

Lincoln County's Old Building Was Reduced to Ruins.

GUARDS ASKED FOR REFUSED

Taxpayers League Offered to Pay Expense of Watchmen.

Auditing Committee That Was to Have Begun Work at Once Delayed by Lack of Records to Work On.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., April 30.—Governor Bryan has been asked to send state officials here to investigate a fire which completely destroyed the old court house here this morning, the disappearance of $12,000 cash and $60,000 in county bonds and of practically all county records.

Charges were preferred against former County Clerk A. S. Allen, who was removed from office last December and confronted with a shortage of $3,000 county funds. Allen, who is out on bonds is declared to be the "goat" for others and a thoro investigation of county records will disclose, it is declared, irregularities in contracts for the new $100,000 coutr house now being built.

Among the ruins was found the old fashioned safe, where county records, bonds and cash were kept. Its time lock had been sprung and its contents were missing.

Insurance of $20,000 is considered adequate to cover the entire loss on the building while the bond issue of $60,000 can be replaced by the county without loss.

The state fire marshal is expected to arrive here tonight. A probe has been requested by citizens.

Last fall voters voted $17,000 in bonds for a complete audit of county books. All the records are believed to have been destroyed in the blaze.

W. E. Shuman of North Platte, head of the taxpayers' league, in a supplementary call for help, told the governor that a request had been made four days ago to have the county board place a guard around the court house. The board refused, he said, an did the same when an offer was made by the league to pay the expense of a guard.

Reports atthe state house Monday morning indicated that a call for assistance from North Platte had been received. Governor Bryan did not so announce, but it is known that agents of the state fire marshal's office and the state sheriff's office are on the way to North Platte. The report that the count sheriff asked the governor for militiamen to guard the ruins until the records that may have been saved can be recovered was not confirmed.

Two years ago bonds were voted for a new court house. The county board awarded a contract, the building to cost $100,000, but this did not appear to have been enough to even enclose the building. The county ran out of money, with an unfinished building and later an additional bond issue was suggested to the voters.

The taxpayers' league, of which W. E. Shuman of North Platte is the head, had arranged at the expense of the league for expert accountants to go over the county records. These experts had arrived at North Platte and were to begin work Tuesday morning.

Numerous telephone calls Sunday, and letters and messages from persons who had not been solicited or who wished to increase their gifts, were encouraging to the committee but no effort was being spared Monday to bring in every available cent.

CODE GOING TO ITS FATE

SENATE ADOPTS CONFERENCE COMMITTEE REPORT.

Governor Indicates Veto Even Tho It Makes Him Head of the Department of Finance.

The senate was first to take the final step toward sending a code bill to Governor Bryan. When that body convened at 11 o'clock it received a report of the conference committee which had H. R. 537, the Dysart-Mathers bill, in charge. The report recommended changes previously published. The senate recedes from its optional feature which would permit the governor to appoint code secretaries or take executive state officers. The house recedes from its regrouping of code activities into four departments and from its provision which would permit the governor to remove executive state officers at the head of the code and appoint others in their places. The bill permits the executive state officers at tht head of the six code departments to appoint their own employes.

In short the bill leaves the code law precisely as it is with the exception of executive state officers in place of appointive code secretaries, along the line preached by Governor Bryan in his campaign talks, "thus restoring constitutional state government," as the democratic platform and the governor expressed it.

When the report of the conference committee was put to a vote in the senate all the democrats save Osborne who voted did not show any desire to restore constitutional government. One democrat, Gumb of Dodge, was absent. One republican, Larkin, an erratic republican member from Omaha, voted against confirmation. Those who voted against adoption of the report were Banning, Fries, Larkin, Purcell, Reifenrath, Shellenbarger, Smrha, Thielen and Tomek. Twenty republicans and Osborne voted for the report. The vote was 21 to 9. The bouse will act on the report later in the day. Governor Bryan has indicated that he will veto the bill.

The senate was represented on the conference committee by Hastings, Allen and Warner.

GOODHUE NOT TO BE FIRED

HOUSE DEFEATS RESOLUTION BY 49 TO 40 VOTE.

Former State Engineer Johnson Is Scored for His Alleged Activities —Party Lines Not in Evidence.

The resolution seeking the scalp of Architect Bertram G. Goodhue was defeated in the house on roll call 49 to 40 Monday. Party lines were not in evidence. Seventeen democrats voted for and 18 voted against the attempt to dictate to the capitol commission what it should do. Twenty-three republicans voted for the resolution and 31 against. Several of the initial signers of the resolution experienced a change of heart and voted against the thing backed by Representatives Amspoker and Thatcher. Representative Hyde, democrat, went so far as to ask that his name be expunged from the record as a signer.

Messrs. Moore, Mitchell and Hyde, three of the signers, voted against the resolution. Representatives Bailey and C. L. Yochum, also signers, declined to vote. The members of the joint investigating committee which recently returned its findings relative to the capitol commission investigation passed. They are Messrs. Kemper, Kendall and McCain. Mr. Kendall had stated, however, that had the committee thought it to be for the best interests of the state to ask removal of the architect, it would have so recommended. He also stated that in his opinion, the state could not save any money by making a change.

Members of the committee on roads and bridges, group with which Former Engineer Johnson has met during much of the session, gave the resolution generous support. Chairman Staats and six of his colleagues voting for it. Representative O'Malley, however, also a member of the committee fought the resolution from beginning to end. Two others of the committee voted with him while one member declined to vote.

Osterman vigorously defended the resolution as did Keck, also a democrat. O'Malley and Beushausen, both democrats, spoke against it. The last state engineer and secretary of the commission who stood back of the railing.

The one man who is responsible for all this agitation, he said, "stands back of the rail. His name is Johnson."

Looking directly at the former engineer, Mr. O'Malley said:

"They would have you believe that members of the commission were not always on the job. I would like to ask whether or not the secretary, paid member, was on the job. If he thought the people of Nebraska were being robbed, why did he not stay on the job?"

The Garber substitute providing that the governor appoint a deputy inspector or supervisor of construction, was defeated 61 to 15.

Mr. O'Malley, in opposing the resolution, supposedly referred to his democratic colleague Osterman when he said:

"This is a grand and glorious opportunity for the man with political aspirations. But I too stand on my record. I am for square treatment and justice for every man whether he is from Nebraska, Ohio or New York."

"It is the business of the capitol commission," said Lamb. "And I am here ready to fight in behalf of the honesty and integrity of the members of that commission."

SAYS STOCK MISREPRESENTED

Trial was begun Monday morning in District Judge Stewart's court in the cause of Thomas A. Tracy against Peter Nelson and John M. Hansen and the Bankers' Brokerage company, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover $500 which he says he paid for stock in the Bankers' Fire Insurance company, which, he claims, was misrepresented. It is alleged that the defendants, Nelson and Hansen, were officers of the Farmers' State bank of Davey, and also representatives of the brokerage company. Mr. Tracy claimed that the defendants misrepresented the par value of the stock, and the financial conditions of the company.

ALLEN STILL A FUGITIVE

MURDERER OF SCOTTSBLUFF POLICE CHIEF NOT CAUGHT.

Believed to Have Help in His Effort to Get Away From Others Engaged in Whisky Selling.

The hunt for Harold Allen, alias Randall, has been transferred from Nebraska to the Wyoming hills, according to information reaching Lincoln, and the chase is taking on some of the aspects of the hunt when Fred Brown, Omaha chain man, was being sought in the west by State Sheriff Gus Hyers.

Allen is said to have shot and killed Chief of Police Peterson of Scottsbluff.

State Sheriff Tom Carroll is not leading the hunt for Allen, but according to information reaching Lincoln he has an agent working on the case and the state officer is much interested in the capture of the man who killed the Scottsbluff chief of police.

It is believed by some that Allen is a member of a gang of bootleggers that is making a last stand against law enforcement in the North Platte valley and whose greatest market has been the Scottsbluff vicinity. A battle with bootleggers is looked upon as one of the possibilities of the man chase.

GERING, Neb., April 30.—Report has reached here that Harold Allen, wanted for murder of Officer Peterson, has been located somewhere north and west of Mitchell in Sioux county. Fred Stone in charge of one party working in the region near South Dakota line, is said to have se tna hurry up call for additional force and several carloads have gone to join him, on the theory that the fugitive is located. This confirms the opinion that Allen is not alone, and trouble is expected in making his arrest.

OFFER MUTUAL APOLOGIES

District Clerk Baer Assists in Making Peace in Family That Had Difficulties.

Mutual apologies were offered Monday morning in the office of District Clerk Baer between members of the family of John Klein, of Firth. Mr. Klein was put under a peace bond in June, 1922, for being abusive to his family, and the same was published in the daily paper. Mr. Klein felt that unless his family would publicly express that they were sorry for the occurance, he would carry a bad name. Jake Baer and the newspaper reporters were called to put in the papers that the family regretted that they had put him under a bond to keep the peace.

ALIBI FAILS NEGRO DEFENDANT.

Dewey Johnson, colored, twenty-five years old, failed in an attempt to convince Police Judge Chappell Monday morning that he was innocent of a charge of illegal possession of liquor. Dewey told the court that he had intended to use a pop bottle of hooch which was found on his person for medicinal purposes. He drew a fine of $100 and costs which he was unable to pay. Detective Schneible arrested Mr. Johnson Sunday evening after the latter left a house on North Ninth street.

NEW JUDGE NAMES HELP

CLEMENTS' SUCCESSOR APPOINTS HERRICK AND BESS RICHARDS.

Was at Court House Monday Morning and Reported That He Would Be on Hand to Preside Over Cases Soon.

Judge Jefferson Broady, newly appointed by Governor Bryan to succeed Judge E. J. Clements, deceased, has appointed O. D. Herrick, bailiff, and Miss Bess Richards, court reporter, to continue their present work under him as they did under Judge Clements.

Miss Richards was appointed by Judge Clements when he was appointed judge by Governor McKelvie, and is known by attorneys and court house attaches as very successful in her work. Bailiff O. D. Herrick was appointed to his position by former Judge Cosgrave when he took office several years ago. Mr. Herrick is an old resident of Lincoln and was formerly a city officer. Judge Broady said he would be at the court house for duty probably within the next two weeks.

ACCOUNTS ARE ALL RIGHT

Auditors Reported That County's Official Papers Are All in Good Shape.

A report made by the auditing firm of Warren & VanBoskirk, covering records of all county officials for the years 1921 and 1922, indicated that with the exceptions of some small errors, which have been corrected, all the accounts are in good shape.

It was stated in the report that all subsidiary accounts in the office of County Treasurer Sutherland are out of balance with their respective general ledger accounts: for example, the general ledger account showing the amount of money due the school district calls for $178,219.01, while the total of the balances as shown by the individual ledger shows that the county owes an amount of $173,021.82. This same condition exists with respect to the road districts accounts and with the tax sale accounts to a lesser degree. This condition existed before County Treasurer Albers took the office, and he is in no way responsible, according to the report.

In the report on the account of former Sheriff Ira Miller, in which it believed he ought to have turned in $26.05, earned by his office in serving papers for courts outside the county, it was given as the opinion of the auditors that these fees ought to have been turned in and accounted for just as those earned from Lancaster county court and a fine was placed in a trust fund balance.

INTANGIBLE TAX BILL DEAD

Senate Declines to Revive Measure to Repeal Act of Last Legislature.

Banning of Cass, senate democratic leader, made alast ineffectual attempt Monday to force H. R. 111 out for consideration. This bill repeals the present law taxing intangible property one-fourth of the levy upon tangible property. It was really upon the table as the result of a former parliamentary fight. Banning sought to take it from the table and place it on the general file. He delivered a short address before he was called to order. He said the farmers were paying taxes on a valuation of 65 per cent of the actual value of their property, while owners of intangible property get off with a levy one-fourth the levy upon tangible property.

Saunders of Douglas raised several points of order and finally was sustained on one challenging the regularity of the motion because the mover had not voted on the prevailing side when the subject matter was tabled. Lieutenant Governor Johnson gave rulings on two or three points. Before Banning ceased his effort to place the senate on record with aroll call. The bill still sleeps. A majority of the revenue committee is of the opinion the law should be given further trial, it having been in force only one year.

CANAL TO ABSORB IDLE.

LEIPZIG, April 30.—The 5,000 unemployed here will soon have a chance to dig themselves out. The proposed canal connecting the Elster and the Saale rivers—a project which was given up at the outbreak of the war—is now about to be built and the unemployed of Leipzig will be given the first chance to lend a spade. The work will begin immediately and will take, according to present plans, about five years to complete, opening a new waterway from middle Germany to the sea.

MRS. MACSWINEY WOULD BOYCOTT ENGLISH GOODS

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the late Lord mayor of Cork, who starved himself to death in an English prison, told 5,000 sympathizers on Boston Commons that the Irish republicans would yet triumph over the free state forces. The meeting held to commemorate the seventh anniversary of the birth of the so-called Irish Republic, in 1916, cheered when she demanded a boycott on all English goods.

ADVENTISTS MAKE MOVE

TO TRANSFER OFFICE FROM COLLEGE VIEW SOON.

Church Will Maintain Headquarters in Grand Island After Close of the School Year at Union College.

Seventh Day Adventists of Nebraska will remove their headquarters from College View to Grand Island at the close of the present term at Union college. The change is being made in order to put headquarters as near the center of the state as possible. It will take five families from College View and three stenographers from the conference office.

Those who with their families will remove to Grand Island in June are Elder S. G. Hoy, president of the conference, Charles Baker, W. L. Halverson, Felix A. Lyon and Secretary D. C. Marshall. Mr. Marshall will take office between now and the end of the school year, succeeding E. J. Moser.

The Adventists are also establishing a college in the western part of Hall county, which they do not expect to compete with Union college, altho quite an enrollment is anticipated for the first term.

G. A. R. OFFICIAL COMING

Commander in Chief Willett of Tama, Ia., to Arrive in Lincoln Tuesday Afternoon.

Commander in Chief James W. Willett of the Grand Army of the Republic will arrive in Lincoln Tuesday afternoon at 3:50 over the Rock Island. He will be entertained at the Lindell hotel during the state encampment of the G. A. R. Adjutant Bross of the department said the crowded condition of the hotel, owing to the prolonged session of the legislature, makes it difficult to entertain the commander in chief at the hotel, but this difficulty will not interfere with the assignment of rooms at that hotel as headquarters for the various organizations during the encampment.

The department commander and Adjutant Bross have been invited to review the R. O. T. C. cadets parade at 5 o'clock Thursday. Commander Sidney Erickson said in his invitation "We will feel highly honored to pass in review before such a patriotic and distinguished organization."

JELLY MAKING A MENACE.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 30.—Is jelly-making a menace to woman citizenship?

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, Texas, chairman of the department of American citizenship in the General Federation of Women's clubs believes it is. Mrs. Pennybacker will address club women at their convention here, May 5, and will remind them that a woman of Wisconsin was defeated in the last republican state primaries because the women didn't vote. They said it was too hot. They were making jelly." All of which resulted in a woman securing 55 votes in a village where she had been promised 150.

DAUGHERTY'S RULING ON LIQUOR KAYOED

Supreme Court Decides Spirits Legal on American Ships Thruout World.

CANNOT BRING IT INSIDE LIMIT

Order Is Reversed as to American Ships.

UPHELD FOR FOREIGN VESSELS

Cannot Bring Liquor in as Sea Stores, According to Decision of High Tribunal Announced Monday.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The United States supreme court today decided that neither American nor foreign ships can legally bring liquor inside the three mile limit of American territorial waters, but that outside the limit both American and foreign ships are no longer subject to American prohibition laws.

The court's decision knocked out in part the ruling of Attorney General Daugherty, which held that the government had power to prohibit American ships anywhere on the seas from carrying liquor, and that it also could prohibit foreign ships bringing it within the three mile limit.

As to American ships, the Daugherty ruling was reversed; as to foreign ships it was upheld.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The supreme court today knocked out Attorney General Daugherty's ruling banning liquor from American ships thruout the world, but held that foreign ships cannot bring liquor inside the American three-mile limit.

The high court held there is nothing in the eighteenth amendment to prevent American ships from having liquor on board when in foreign waters, but decided the amendment does apply specifically to foreign ships entering territorial waters of the United States. Foreign ships cannot bring liquor in as sea stores, the court held.

The decision was by a vote of seven to two, Justices McReynolds and Sutherland dissenting.

The majority opinion was read by Associate Justice Van Devanter.

In a dissenting opinion, Justice Sutherland expressed the belief that barring liquor on foreign ships within our territory was an unjust and unreasonable interference and one apt to lead to international misunderstanding.

Today's decision was handed down by the court on appeal from an opinion of Federal Judge Learned Hand in New York, which upheld the Daugherty ruling. For the American lines the appeal was brought by the United American lines, which claimed it was illegal to prohibit them from opening their bars when an American ship passed out of the three mile zone.

For the foreign lines the appeal was made by the Cunard and Anchor lines, the Oceanic Steam Navigation company, the International Navigation company, the Compagne Generale Trans-Atlantique, the Holland-American line, the Royal Mail Steam Packet line, the Scandinavian American line, the Liverpool Brazil and River Platte Steam Navigation, the Pacific Steam Navigation company and the Navigazone Generale Italians.

The foreign lines based their objects mainly on the Italian law requiring ships carrying Italian crews to provide wine rations for them, even when in foreign ports. It was pointed out that a ship could not sail for Italy from an American port with Italians in the crew unless wine was aboard.

George W. Wickerham, former attorney general, represented the steamship lines, while the Anti-Saloon league and other temperance organizations supported the government.

The majority opinion said.

"Various meanings are sought to be attributed to the term 'territory' in the phrase 'the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof.' We are of the opinion that it means the regional areas—of land and adjacent waters—over which the United States claims and exercises dominion and control as a sovereign power. The immediate context and the purport of the entire section show that the term is used in a physical and not a metaphorical sense—that it refers to areas or districts having fixity of location and recognized boundaries."

The decision continues:

"The government contends that the amendment also covers domestic merchant ships outside the waters of the United States, whether on the high seas or in foreign waters. But it does not say so, and what it does say shows as we have indicated, that it is confined to the physical territory of the United States. In support of their contention the government refer to the famous opinion made that a merchant ship is a part of the territory of the country whose flag she flies. But this has been aptly observed, is a figure of speech a metaphor. The words 'territory' is intended to describe areas of land [illegible] the character of [illegible] of territorial [illegible]

BREAK AWAY FROM CALIPH

BELGRADE, April 30.—Albanian Mohammedans have taken the first step in what is regarded here in the eventual breaking away of many Moslems from the established church, leaving the caliph at Constantinople, once recognized both as the sultan of Turkey and the head of the hundreds of millions of Mohammendans, merely the spiritual leader of the Turkish branch of the church.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILLS

School District to Get Half the Tax on Bridge Over the Missouri River at Sioux City.

Governor Bryan signed these bills Monday:

H. R. 509—Defining the boundaries of the state for the purpose of requiring payment of one half the tax on a bridge at Sioux City to the school district on the Nebraska side of the Missouri river.

H. R. 233—Authorizing the sheriff of Douglas county to appoint twenty-five deputies when necessary.

S. F. 128—Repealing a law which prohibits cities of from 5,000 to 25,000 to pay more than 25 cents a square for publication of legal notices.

ADJOURNMENT NOT CERTAIN

MUCH BUSINESS BEFORE MEN MAY TRAVEL HOME.

More Optimistic Legislators Still Hoped for the Finish Late Monday or Some Time During Tuesday.

Legislators at noon Monday ha practically abandoned hope of a Monday adjournment altho some of them clung to tha' hope. The appropriation bill, not out of conference, is the big [illegible]. The house was prepared to vote early in the afternoon on adopting the conference committee report on H. R. 537, Mathers-Dysart administrative bill. The committee recommends grouping as proposed by the senate. The house plan of placing activities under executive heads was adopted in conference, the heads to appoint their own employes.

There was little doubt as to the solid stand of republicans. In view of the apparent hopelessness of overthrowing orderly acceptance, was expected to discourage democrats from further wasting oratory even tho their governor had urged a last ditch stand.

The general salaries bill must still go to conference since the senate provided for $5,000 code secretaries. The house will strike this from the bill. It is the plan to put a revision program to the governor which will not encourage his veto. If no appropriation is made for code secretaries, it will be difficult. It is believed for the governor to veto 537 unless he desires to call a special session back to do something which that special session probably would decline to do.

The general claims bill also must go to conference. The conference committee on H. R. 622, Lincoln school board bill, recommends reduction of the twenty mill limit as proposed in the senate amendment to fifteen mills. This will hold the school board to $1,200,000 a year unless the people of the district vote to shift to the mill levy basis in which instance they cannot exceed 15 mills.

The house concurred 59 to 22 in H. R. 409, Keck bill requiring that no advertising sign shall appear along road or highway within 300 feet of a railroad crossing. The senate amended by adding [illegible] where highways cross.

In committee of the whole, the house killed S. F. 14, providing that owners of land may [illegible] and fish on their premises without license.

No vote was taken prior to the noon recess on an attempt to revive S. J. 24, proposing a constitutional amendment to remove certain exemptions from taxation. The principal item being $200 on household goods.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Newly Engageds."

Marcella fell asleep at last, and dreamt of....Miles! He was here, and they were very, very happy, she and he!

The dressing-gong awoke her with a start, and she came back to this prosaic world.

Twenty minutes later, she was in the hall with Lady Warrington, Sir Humphrey, Warwick and several of the other guests.

"I hear taxi-wheels. How stupid of me to have forgotten to send a car to the station for our late comers!" exclaimed the hostess. She turned to Warwick and Marcella.

"You two ought to sympathize with them, for they're another pair of lovers!" she said. "I met them both in Paris, and was quite fascinated with them. Here they are!"

The butler had flung the front door open, and Marcella could vaguely see—for that part of the hall was dimly lit—a slender young man enter by the side of a woman.

Lady Warrington bounded forward effusively.

"Leonie Day? Of course it is! And Mr.....Mr.....now isn't it dreadful of me, but I've forgotten the name again?" She led them forward.

Leonie Day? Marcella's heart was hammering in her chest. So this.... this was the woman who had kept "him" in Paris....the woman who had ruthlessly smashed Marcella's castles-in-the-air....

Her throbbing gaze turned to the bronzed young man....good heavens! ....yes....no....it couldn't be....!

It was.

Miles Holden stood there, cool and self-possessed, the acknowledged lover of another woman!

"And you must meet our newly-engaged's!" twittered Lady Warrington, drawing Marcella forward with one hand, and indicating Warwick Treman with a sweep of the other. "Miss Day, Mr. Holden, may I present Miss Field to you?"

Marcella felt the blood ebb from her face back to her heart, and a queer dizziness caught her, so that out of the blur of people she could barely see Miles' outline.

Then Leonie Day, in a high-pitched voice, and with rather an insolent drawl, inquired:

"Are you referring to Miles and me as the 'newly engaged's,' or is this young woman—" she glanced coolly at Marcella, with a pert smile—"is this young woman a conspirator with some one else?"

"The more the merrier," began the hostess, when Miss Day's gaze came to anchor on Treman. She ran forward artlessly to greet him.

"Good gracious, Warwick! Isn't this a pleasure? I'd forgotten you were to be here!" She held his hand a little longer than was necessary, in the circumstances. (A good thing, thought she shrewdly, to make Miles Holden jealous!)

Lady Warrington interrupted, with a giggle.

"You'll be making Marcella jealous, if you flirt with her fiance! Yes, these are our newly engaged's."

Leonie's face looked startled, and her mouth fell open. Altho enamoured with the sculptor, she had been vain enough to regard the older, richer man as something in the nature of a second string.

This news, then, was rather disconcerting.

It was annoying, too, to find another pretty girl, esconsced in this delightful home. She had counted on a clear field for herself. Not, of course, that Miles would be attracted to this Marcella What's-her-name.... but men often did hanker after another's property.....good heavens! how queer Miles was looking! Was he ill, or what?

"Miss Field and I have met before." Could anything in the world be stiffer than his voice? He bowed his head with the barest inclination.

(Odd! Very odd indeed!)

As for the girl, she stood there like an automaton, as tho bereft of speech or movement.

"And now, you two," Lady Warrington broke in, briskly, "run off and dress. Mr. Holden, Briggs will show you to your room." (Briggs was the butler.) She caught Leonie by the arm. "And I'll take you up to your room, dear. I'll put dinner back another fifteen minutes."

The newcomers moved away.

Marcella made a violent effort for self-composure. The shock of seeing Miles....down here.... in company with this woman....it had been overwhelming.

Treman had been right, quite right. Oh, how humiliated did she feel!

"You look pale, Miss Field," interrupted the woman with sticking-out teeth and fishy eyes. "Hadn't you better sit down and rest, and let me fetch you a glass of sherry?"

Treman came to the rescue. A queer little smile still hovered about his rather cruel lips.

"Miss Field is tired after her American trip and the social round of town." He took her arm and led her to a wide divan. Then, under his breath, he contrived to whisper, so that she alone could hear:

"Pull yourself together, dear, and don't let any of them suspect anything. The fellow isn't worth it."

She flushed in chagrin and humiliation. Even for Warwick to know that she's been treated so....

"I'm all right. You're quite mistaken," she gasped, sotto voce. Then, in a louder tone, and striving to be at ease:

"Yes, thanks, I'd like a glass of sherry."

Warwick went to fetch it, and the woman with the prominent teeth fussed over her.

"You don't look very strong, my dear. I've studied nursing, and I know. Your coloring is so delicate that it suggests 'heart' to me. Been troubled that way much?"

(Ah! hadn't she? How on earth could she face Miles, and not die of shame?)

"Such a handsome fellow, this Mr. Holden!" went on the tormentor, all unconscious of her power to hurt. "I've always so admired those dark, clean-cut men. And his fiancee is a lovely girl. Don't you agree?"

"His fiancee? Is he engaged?" Marcella heard her own voice ask. It seemed to come from very far away.

"Oh, yes, I think so." The spinster was romantic. "They looked so happy, and of course arriving like that together proved there is something between them! I think they make a very stunning pair."

Another knife-twist in the wound!

WORKER SUES FOR BIG SUM

BURLINGTON EMPLOYE CHARGES NEGLIGENCE CAUSED INJURY.

Henry L. Anderson of Wymore Wants $12,000 Compensation for Loss of Sight of His Right Eye.

Henry L. Anderson's damage suit against the Burlington railroad, brought March 26 in the district court of Gage county, was transferred Monday to the federal district court at Lincoln. Mr. Anderson is suing the road for $12,500 as compensation for injuries to his eyes for which he blames the negligence of a shop foreman and employes at Wymore.

Mr. Anderson was operating an acetylene welding machine and power saw in the Wymore shops on March 28, 1921, and for many years previously, his petition sets forth, and the injury to his eyes occurred that day when at the foreman's direction he crawled under a car to cut off some iron bolts with the welder. A heavy brake rod that had been left on the car instead of being removed as was customary when repair work was to be done, fell and struck his head and shoulders, knocking off his goggles and sending a stream of flame from the acetylene torch into his eyes.

He has since lost the sight of his right eye, he tells the court, and the left is in bad condition and growing worse.

Mr. Anderson maintains that the foreman and employes were negligent in not removing the brake rod, and he asks for $12,500 and interest at 7 per cent from March 26, 1923.

PROBE CULT'S ALLEGED EXPLOITATION OF GIRLS

Two youthful brides, members of the House of David colony, which the state of Michigan is investigating as a result of charges that girls of fourteen and fifteen, members of the colony, were debauched.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich.—Midnight meetings in corn fields, "courtships" in the girls' dormitory rooms, and wholesale weddings when reports were circulated that officials were going to raid the colony, are some of the charges under investigation by the state of Michigan, which is probing the affairs of "King" Ben Purnell, head of the House of David, a religious cult here. So far authorities have been unable to find Purnell, but they have quizzed many of its members.

The state is particularly interested in the "hurried" weddings of scores of the young folks of the colony. According to stories told officials male members of the colony, old and young, visited the girls' dormitories after dark. "King" Purnell, authorities were told, participated in many of the alleged orgies. Girls were taught that whatever Purnell told them they should do, witnesses stated.

Back to Society.

It did not take Evelyn and Willows long to establish themselves in their new home. The butler, the cook, the three maids and a chauffeur did not awe them or turn their heads. Before two weeks had passed they found themselves accepting the new environment as a matter of fact and their lives going on just as serenely and happily as in their days at the little Long Island bungalow.

"Shall we go in for society and try to assume the many social duties my aunt did?" asked Evelyn one morning before Willows left for the bank.

"Do anything you please, sweetheart," he replied. "I will be your escort to a dowager's mansion or a welfare dance. It's all for you to decide."

Invitations had flocked to them since people learned that Evelyn had inherited the money, property and jewels of the late dowager. At first Evelyn turned them down, but as time wore on and she found her welfare work less complicated and taking care of itself she decided to enter her former social world.

But it was at Clarice Burtons wedding that both Evelyn and Willows decided that society life did not appeal to them.

"I'm so glad you found the second will and that your aunt decided to leave you everything," whispered the bride at her reception. "Of course you may have been very happy, Evelyn, but not every one in our set would have accepted your husband. Now it doesn't make any difference. Your money will cover everything up."

Evelyn was about to protest and ask what Clarice meant by "cover everything up," but she decided that this was the greatest day in her best chum's life and no time to bicker over small things. So she passed on silently, down the line and let the next person congratulate the bride.

Meanwhile Willows was going thru a similar experience with the bridegroom.

"By George, old man, I'm mighty glad your wife got what was coming to her," said Rupert Donley as he shook Willows by the hand forcefully. "Of course you know Clarice and I would have come down to that dinky little bungalow out on the island or gone to Barren Island or anywhere, but you know how most people feel. Now that you've got the town house and everything you'll find the old crowd is right with you."

"I suppose so," agreed Willows cynically but he would have liked to have said a whole lot more.

As he and Evelyn motored home that night neither said much. It was their first experience in social life together. Willows had not gone about with her at all and whenever any of her old former girl friends visited her he usually maanged to slip off to the club.

"You don't care much for my set, do you?" asked Evelyn as they stood alone in the library upon their return.

"No, I don't," he admitted rather abruptly.

"Well, neither do I," flashed Evelyn.

Impulsively Willows crossed the library and took the young wife in his arms.

"I was afraid you would dear," he confessed. "I wondered how we could adjust things if you did. I can't imagine spending three or four evenings a week with people who talk about nothing but riches, clothes, new cars and their own set. I don't play golf and I don't know a thing about fancy breeds of horses or dogs. I would be lost."

"So would I," laughed Evelyn as she patted down her husband's evening tie. "You look much better in tweed suits, dear, and fancy cravats than you do in evening clothes. You're a dear, good business boy and I'm glad I had sense enough to marry you instead of picking a jolly fool from my own crowd."

SIGN PAPERS IN OIL GRANT

TURKS AND COLONEL KENNEDY CONSUMMATE CONCESSION.

French Protests to No Avail and Project to Begin at Once to Haul Mineral Oil to the Sea

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 30.—The Turkish government grant to American concessionaires in the development of Anatolian oil fields was signed at Angora today.

In the face of French protests the Turkish commissioner of public works, Feizi Bey and Colonel Kennedy of the Ottoman-American Development company affixed their signatures to the final papers, dispatches stated.

Copies were exchanged by the parties and the work will be begun at the earliest possible moment.

The manager of the railway project, which is to haul mineral oil to the sea, has begun a study of the situation and actual labor on the scheme will be begun as soon as his plans are completed.

Colonel Kennedy went to Angora by way of Mudania aboard an American destroyer. All the details were completed before his arrival and there remained only the formal signing of the papers.

PROBE NEGRO'S LYNCHING

Grand Jury to Inquire Into Mob Law at Columbia, Mo., While University Students Looked On.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 30.—A grand jury will investigate the lynching of Charles Scott, negro, by a mob of 600, while many Missouri university students looked on, Prosecuting Attorney Hulen said today.

Scott was hanged to a railroad trestle after Regina Almstedt, fourteen, said to have identified him as the man who attempted to attack her.

Prof. A. H. Almstedt, father of the girl, and the sheriff pleaded with the mob to let the law take its course. The lynchers swept them out of the way and rushed the suspect to the trestle, as chapel bells sounded Sunday church calls.

Scott pleaded innocence. He was a campus building janitor.

In response to reports that many students of the University of Missouri were in the mob as it led Scott from the jail to be hanged, Dr. Isador Loeb, president of the university, today made the following statement:

"To the best of my knowledge there were no students actively participating in the work of killing this negro. I have no doubt there were many student onlookers, and I never issued any statement denying this fact."

WOULD OUST LUDENDORFF.

BERLIN, April 30.—General Ludendorff declares he has "an ancient right" to remain in Germany.

Deputy Held of Bavaria, thru his newspaper, the Regensburger Anzeiger, recently opened a broadside against the former German army leader, declaring Ludendorff didn't really have a right to remain in Bavaria in view of his alleged recent "putsch" activities. Whereupon Ludendorff replied: "I live here on the strength of my right as a German. Whoever doesn't recognize this right denies the existence of the empire since 1871. I recommend to the Regensburger Anzeiger the study of the third article of the Weimar (republican) constitution, which its friends helped draw up. However, I do not base my right upon this constitution but on ancient German rights."

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: Until a short time ago, I was the happiest man in the world. Then one of these female angels with horns and tail felt it her duty to inform me that my wife did not, nay, never had loved me. This is how it all came about:

It happened shortly after my wife and I were introduced. I "saved her life" and then promptly fell in love with her. And, I am informed, she married me not out of love, but gratitude. In fact, at the time, she was really in love with another person.

Tho I had not noticed it before, my informer warns me how poorly my wife is looking, and that she is literally pining away from love of the other fellow.

Mary Gordon, tell me what to do. I am as much or more in love with her than the day I "rescued" her, but I would rather cut my right hand off than see her unhappy. Would you advise divorce in a case like this? We have been married nearly a year, and have no children.—Micky.

A. My dear Mickie, women don't marry men out of gratitude, except in fiction. The fact that she married you shows she loved you.

Divorce? Never!

Prove your love for her by continuing to make her happy, by being just the very best husband you can.

And forget all about the "female angel" and her words. If you can't do it on my word, ask your wife. I wager she will laugh it off as too ridiculous for consideration.

Dear Mary Gordon: I think the flappers got it back on "Lincoln" pretty good. I am a young married woman with two of the dearest little children in the world. I was married at seventeen and am proud to say it has been a successful young marriage. I and my husband have found that we mean more to one another all the time.

I didn't know much about housework when I was married, but my husband was patient and loving when I made a failure of things, so we find I am improving all the time and will soon be able to cook as well as other women.

What I was wanting to ask you was if you could give me the names and addresses of some magazines and papers you might think would be willing to take a short story for a beginner. I have always liked to write and read stories and have at last made up my mind I would like to try and sell some if it were possible. Wishing you success in your work.—A Happy Wife.

A. All of the magazines are looking for promising new writers all the time. The thing to do is to write your stories so well that they will want them. Don't be discouraged if the first magazine doesn't accept your story. Send it to all the editors whose publications use the class of material you have. It is quite important not to send a detective story to a magazine which cares only for "home stories," or a ghost story to one which specializes in travel.

Dear Mary Gordon: A few words to "Once a Benedict," Mary is right when she said, "If you loved your wife how could you treat her so cruelly." You don't love her with all your soul, Benedict, or you couldn't turn from her to another woman that would play with married men.

What was the matter with you any way that you let her go to work to get some extra money for herself. Of course she was tired when night came after working all day, how does it come you weren't tired too Benedict? Oh! yes! I forgot, your wife was doing the working. If you had been working all day, the same as your wife you would have been as tired as she, and would have enjoyed a quiet evening at home and not cared about going out with other women.

I don't blame your wife for not taking you back, how does she know you won't do the same thing again, you proved your faithfulness once, that's enough for most women.

Oh! you can sympathize with yourself but that's all you deserve, you hadn't ought to have an ounce of sympathy from any one else.

Of course you are tired staying at your sister's, but when you had a good home you didn't have sense enough to appreciate it, you had ought to stay tired. You never, never can make up to your wife for what you have done, even tho' she does take you back she'll never forget, and will always feel that you're apt to do the same thing again. When one's faith is once broken it never heals without leaving a scar.

I could write a whole column to Benedict, but it would probably be to deaf ears so I'll quit. I'm not a silly little girl, I'm nearer thirty than sixteen and I have a home of my own, with kiddies too, we're not wealthy and we both work to make ends meet, altho my work doesn't take me away from home.

Husband is a hard worker too. We both read the letters and express our ideas of them. Husband thinks the same as I do about Benedict.

We are a —— Contented family.

A. Not sympathy perhaps, but forgiveness, is what Once a Benedict needs. We all require it sometimes. We're only human and we make mistakes.

Congratulations on the happy home!

Dear Mary: I am going with a young man and I have been for some time. I think very much of him and I think he returns the favor in fact I know he does. Now Mary he does not want me to go with other boys and I want to as I am only fourteen. I think I have a perfect right to go with anyone I want to, Don't you? Also as to whether a boy friend should kiss you good night. Is it right to let them kiss you? Come on "Billy" I like your letters. Flappers are all right and I'm proud to say I am one.—Jacequeline.

A. I think you're too young to be pairing off with boys, yet awhile. It's all right for boys and girls of your age to mingle in groups but when you begin "keeping company" at your age, really you're rubbing off a good deal of the bloom of childhood

No, don't let the boys kiss you.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Charles J. Vifquain, son of General Victor Vifquain, left Lincoln for the Klondike region where he would join his brother Blakely at Dawson, who had bought an interest in several mines.

U. G. Powell, who had been connected with the Burlington eleven years, purchased the flour, feed and grinding business of Bartlett & Howard at 420 North Ninth street.

Miss Marie Hoover returned from New York where she had spent the winter studying with the pianist Xavier Scharwenka.

The Journal printed Klondike letters from W. K. Whitmore and Ex-councilman Tom Draper.

Walt Mason, who conducted a column in the Journal, said that patriotism was dwindling perceptibly on the street corners of Lincoln since it became known that a heavy war tax would be placed upon beer.

Mrs. Rebecca A. Randall, one of the old settlers of Lincoln, died in Kansas City where she had been taken for treatment.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

HAVELOCK BOILER MAKER CAPTURED

Jim Cordino, Alleged to Have Shot and Wounded Omaha Girl and Father, Taken from Train at Ames, Iowa.

Word was received by Sheriff Hensel Sunday that Jim Cordino, Havelock boiler maker, who is alleged to have shot and badly wounded Anna Greco, a fifteen year old girl, and her father, Alfred Greco, at Omaha, Saturday at midnight, had been picked up by the sheriff at Ames, Ia. Sheriff Hensel had been warned to be on the lookout for the Havelock man and learned that he roomed at Havelock. The Omaha police ascertained later that Cordino had driven his car to Council Bluffs from Omaha and had bought a ticket for Chicago. Officers wired the Ames sheriff to be on the lookout for Cordino, and the officer took him from the train.

According to the story from Omaha, Miss Greco's parents had objected to Cordino's attentions and ordered him to keep away from her. It is claimed that he gained access to the Greco home by climbing thru a second story window into the girl's bedroom, and pleaded with her to elope. She refused. He started shooting and had fired several shots into her body when the father rushed into the room and Cordino, it is claimed, then turned the gun on him.

Police Chief Mecham of Havelock said that Cordino left Havelock sometime Saturday on the train and his brother drove Cordino's automobile to Omaha. The brother has not returned to Havelock with the car. Cordino roomed in a business block above a store at Havelock.

REMAIN AWAY FROM DANGER

Railroad Official Urges All to Help to Save Lives and Limbs of Young.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 27, 1923.—To the Editor: This is a time of the year when young people, children, oftentimes little folks, endanger themselves, to an extent which they do not realize, by playing on and about cars and on the railroad tracks. It is an opportune time for parents and other adults, school people, church people, and officers of the law to carry on a campaign of education in the matter of safety first; for that is in reality a thing in which everyone believes, as indicated by the proverb: "Self preservation is the first law of nature." The trouble is that many of the youngsters do not know or realize the danger; while many of those who believe there is danger think they are smart enough to do as they choose and yet escape unharmed.

Those who are engaged in railroad work and are confronted with the duty of operation, and at the same time must spare no effort to prevent accident, need the assistance of all who can disseminate friendly counsel. This is not intended to give the idea that at all times many children are about railroads, still enough of them do come from time to time to cause trainmen, yardmen, enginemen and others a considerable amount of apprehension. Perhaps you would like to pass the work along. Anyone who will help can feel sure it is a good thing to try to protect the youngsters by getting them to remain away from danger.

HOLD A CHURCH PAGEANT

"The Light of the World" Is Put on by Cast of Hundred and Fifty Sunday Night.

A pageant entitled, "The Light of the World", was given at the First Methodist church at University Place at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. The production was directed by Miss Laura Jewell and Rev. Frank Lindhorst. A hundred and fifty persons took parts in the cast and over sixteen hundred people formed the audience.

The music was in charge of Dean Parvin Witte and Prof. William Larson with Mrs H. R. Easterbrook at the organ. The pageant was divided in five themes: first, "The Prophesy of the Coming Messiah"; second, "The Coming of the Light"; third, "Isaiah's Vision of the Light: His Consecration"; fourth, "The Light from Bethlehem Spreads into All the World", and fifth, "Consecration and Coronation."

Principal parts in the cast were taken by: H. E. Alder, James Connely, Stella Olson, Duane Miller, Willa Weaver, Tapka Aden, Harriet Frahm, Emmanetta Boydston, Geneva George, Isabel Rankin, Pearl Sherlock, Dr. E. R. Mathers, John Aikman, T. J. Thompson, Hazel Ziggafoos and Mrs J. A. Murray.

BRYAN CRACKS PARTY WHIP

Tells Democrats to Stand Against the Code Plan.

Governor C. W. Bryan issued a call Sunday evening to the democrats of the senate and house to stand 100 per cent against the Mathers-Dysart code plan and made it known in his statement that if the plan passed the legislature he would veto it. The governor said:

"The democrats promised repeal; not modification of the code. The democratic platform and myself pledged a regrouping of the state activities, not a distribution. The Mathers plan of distributing the state activities among the state constitutional officers is just the opposite of what the democrats pledged.

"Prior to the code, the state officers, acting in groups decided the state's policies and the governor carried them out. The code was advertised as a plan to centralize power in the hands of the governor. The Mathers plan is just the opposite. It distributes power among six conflicting departments. The republicans named the code as a cabinet form of government similar to the Washington plan.

"The Mathers plan destroys the cabinet and makes it impossible. Under the Mathers plan, the state officers would act independently and the constitutional duties of the governor to see that efficient and economical administration of govrnment was had would be impossible. Trying to work under the Mathers plan, would be as absurd as a business proposition as it would be to divide the supreme court into seven separate courts in place of having them act jointly.

"The democrats could not support the Mathers plan without disregarding the wishes of the voters as expressed at the polls. And I could not permit this Mathers or Dysart plan to become a law without feeling that I had betrayed the people and sacrificed the tax payers' business interests."

"The democrats of the senate Saturday voted 100 per cent against the code makeshift and I hope to see the democrats of the house stand also against any further attempts to override the will of the people as expressed at the polls."

MERE MENTION

The United States Civil Service Commission announces the following open competitive examinations at Lincoln: Railway Mail Clerk, May 26; Forest and Field Clerk, May 19.—Adv.

At the Oberlies class at the Lindell hotel yesterday it was pretty clearly brought out that these mother-in-law jokes are poor things. Some mothers-in-law, like Naomi of old are wonderful people after all, and a winsome daughter-in-law and the devoted mother of her husband can really be lovable pals. One man declared that these "in-law" parents cause trouble by too much pity for their own son or daughter, as the case may be, and also interfere with economic problems and home management. The exponent of this idea got a pretty hard calling down, as the class voted almost solidly for the cause of the much joked about, and misunderstood mother-in-law. The attendance was unusually large, and the singing and orchestra greater than usual in volume. Topic next Sunday, "When Should a Man Be Chloroformed?"

"Mamma, when people are in mourning do they weak black nightgowns?"

"Why of course not."

"Well, don't they feel just as bad in the night as they do in the daytime?"—Boston Transcript.

How Walpole Spends Christmas.

Hugh Walpole is the son of the bishop of Edinburgh and was born in Auckland, New Zealand, in 1884.

After leaving Cambridge he did newspaper work in London, then began writing novels. In early youth he spent three years in America, where his father was professor of dogmatic theology in Union Theological seminary, New York. His first work was a novel about Guy Fawkes, written at the age of twelve and submitted to the critical eye of the family cook. His first published novel, "The Wooden Horse," saw the light while Mr. Walpole was a master in a provincial school outside of London. He showed it to a fellow master, who told him blandly he would never be a novelist. Then Walpole met Charles Marriott, a novelist of distinction, and he liked "The Wooden Horse." The result was that Walpole left the school and set out for London. He always begins his novels on Christmas eve—he has always done so and believes that it brings him luck. He starts his work with his novel planned accurately in his mind, and no matter how far off Christmas may be, he adheres to his custom, and by the time he is ready to start, the novel is ready to unfold for him.—Everybody's Magazine.

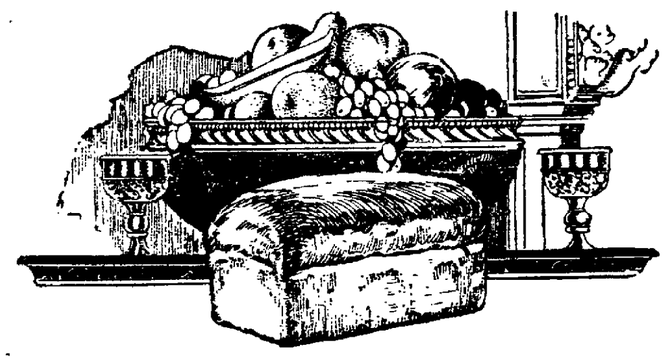
Did Winter leave you with that tired feeling?

WINTER'S confinement, with its lack of pure air and sunshine, shows its effect in Spring. To be underweight, easily tired, listless, and have a poor appetite, indicates a weakened condition of the blood. Nature must have help—your blood is minus fighting strength! More red-cells mean cleaner, purer, richer blood. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells. It builds blood-power! That is what makes fighting blood. Fighting blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! It builds nerve-power,—thinking power. It builds up run-down, tired men and women, beautifies complexions, and makes the flesh firmer. Stronger and more useful nerves depend on blood-power. S. S. S. will give you that greater endurance, energy and strength!

Mrs. Lizzie Pelmet, Crowell, Texas, writes: "I was in a run-down condition—had lost forty-four pounds in weight. Also suffered from pimples and blackheads. My druggist recommended S.S.S. It made me a new woman. I think S.S.S. to be the best medicine on earth."

Try it yourself. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical. Get a bottle today!

S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again



Bread May Be Either a Food or a Filler

Bread that is baked for price alone is inadequate food. While it fills, it fails to nourish. It doesn't pay its way, for it falls short in food value.

But BETSY ROSS Bread, baked for nourishment first, gives nourishment in full measure. This bread contains the highest grade short patent flour, pure cane sugar, sparkling crystal salt and rich, whole milk, and is processed and baked to preserve the proper proportion of carbohydrates, proteins, vitamins and mineral salts.

If bread fails to nourish, it is valueless. If it really nourishes, as does BETSY ROSS, it is cheap at any price within reason. That's why BETSY ROSS is the cheapest food you can buy.

DICKY MEETS A QUEER TREE DWELLER.

DICKY hardly breathed for fear of disturbing the queer creature that hung by its four legs, back downward, to the branches above his head.

"What in the world can that be?" he mused. "Uncle said I'd find the woods here in South America just filled with queer-looking creatures and I guess he's right. That's surely a funny-looking thing. Dear, I——"

Something like a streak of lightning flashed in front of Dicky and Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, stood smiling at his side.

"Save your breath, Dicky," he laughed. "I'm here waiting. What can I do to help you, anyway?"

"Oh, Squeedee," Dicky whispered, catching hold of the elfin's hand and pointing to the queer-looking creature. "What kind of an animal is that anyway?"

Squeedee looked up among the branches and then laughed.

"Why, Dicky, that's Mr. Sloth," he replied. "Come on, we'll go up and see him. He's such a queer fellow, he never has been known to come down to the ground."

"Don't have to," laughed Mr. Sloth, holding out his claws to shake hands, "not when my friends come up to see me."

Dicky had a good look at him. There he hung back downward from the branch, holding on with his strong, sharp claws. His face resembled that of a monkey. His body looked like that of a bear, but he had no tail at all.

"That's Mr. Sloth."

"And Squeedee tells me you've never been down upon the ground," Dicky said. "Why, don't you like it down there?"

"Can't say that I do," Mr. Sloth replied. "In the first place, my legs were never made for walking on the ground. In the second place, I don't have to leave the trees, for all I eat are leaves, and I can get plenty right up here."

"But don't you get dizzy when you hang down like that?" asked Dicky. "I couldn't hang head down that way very long."

"Of course, you couldn't," laughed Mr. Sloth. "And I can't walk on the ground like you do. But, pshaw! I get everything I want up here. Water——"

"I was just going to ask where you get your water to drink," laughed Dicky.

"I drink the dews," replied Mr. Sloth. "Yes, I drink, eat, sleep and travel this way, back downward. Funny, I guess you think, but not as funny as walking on all four feet seems to me."

"Well, I wish my mama could see you," Dicky said. "We don't have creatures like you in my country."

"So that's the reason you are so interested in me," laughed Mr. Sloth. "No, I guess my relatives live mostly in South America. Well, I'm glad to know you, little boy. I hope the day will come when all little children will know and love us. Come again some time."

As yet Squeedee and Dicky hadn't said a word about going, but when Mr. Sloth in his clever way invited them to go, they bade him good-by.

Dicky and Squeedee scrambled out of the tree just in time to hear Dicky's aunt calling him for lunch.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

The Strange Thing Mrs. Marks Begged Madge to Do.

THAT my nervous sleeplessness and my imagination were playing bizarre tricks upon me, was the conclusion to which I came after minutes of consideration of the heavy breathing and the stealthy footfalls leading away from my door.

Mrs. Marks must have gone out of the outer hall door when it slammed. I was certain of that, and I must have imagined the rest. Whether or not my decision brought the slumber which I had been wooing unsuccessfully for so long, I do not know. At any rate, I slept, fitfully, it is true, for perhaps 15 minutes, when I was awakened by a sharp stabbing pain in my chest.

I knew it instantly for the uncomfortable thing it was. My old enemy, nervous indigestion, had its grip on me. The exciting, pleasurable evening, the rich food, the annoying controversy with Dicky after arriving home—all these had contributed to the unpleasant result which I now faced.

From experience of similar attacks in the past, I knew that I must take prompt measures, or I would be really ill. Hot water I must have as soon as possible. I must prepare a mustard poultice, and get from the medicine-chest in the bathroom the old-fashioned, time-honored remedies which I always carry with me. Repressing a little groan, for the pain was acute, I slipped out of bed, pulled down the window and the curtain, switched on the light, and put on my slippers and my warm bath-robe.

Then I remembered—with a sudden sharing of Dicky's antipathy to our little apartment—that I would be compelled to go out into the common entrance hall to get to the bathroom for my medicines and hot-water bag, and to the kitchen for the heating of hot water over my three-hole gas plate.

Madge Is Timorous.

For a pusillanimous minute, I was tempted to waken Dicky and ask him to go out into the dark hall with me. Then, at the remembrance of his furious exit from the living-room, my pride stiffened my cowardice, and, leaving the living-room door open behind me, so that the light would stream out into the dark corridor, I hurriedly traversed the few steps to the bathroom door. Switching on the light, I secured my remedies and a small roll of muslin pieces from the medicine-chest, and started timorously down the hall toward my dark little kitchen, the last of our rooms, and separated only by a thin door from one of the rooms of the Marks apartment.

I knew the location of every article in it, so I put down the articles I carried upon the table before I raised my arm to grope for the chain of the electric light suspended from the ceiling. But before I could reach it, a hand went over my lips, effectually preventing my screaming, and an arm was thrown around my waist, supporting me, while close to my ear Mrs. Marks's voice sounded in a whisper, effectually low this time:

"Make a Lot of Noise—"

"Excuse me, dearie, I ain't goin' to hurt you, but I knew you'd scream if you saw me unexpected-like, and that would mean the end of me, maybe. Listen. Will you let me hide in your bathroom till you get through here? I swear I hain't touched one of your things, or won't. Shake my hand if you will."

I had almost swooned when in the darkness her hand had gone over my lips, but the relief at her whisper had brought me back to composure, and I complied with her absurd request promptly.

She took her hand from my mouth and bent to my ear again.

"Wait till I get to the bathroom before you turn on the light. I'll lock the door, and you just scratch on the door like a cat when you come. I'll explain then. And, for the love of Mike, make a lot of noise in here, clatter the dishes or something. Petey may stick his nose out in the hall to see who's in here, but nobody'll disturb you, honest to Mike they won't."

She released me, and glided away. I obediently waited until I heard the faint closing of the bathroom door before turning on the light. Then I began the clatter of the dishes she had asked for—just in time, it proved—for a second later the door of the Marks apartment opened and a quick step sounded to me kitchen door.

"Oh, excuse me!" the saturnine Petey said, as I whirled to face him. "I thought I heard some one in the hall. You know, there's been two burglaries in the house this week."

He walked away without giving me time to reply, and I heard the locking and closing of his door with the feelings, I think, of a prisoner granted a reprieve. Then, with nervous fingers, I heated water, prepared my mustard poultice and applied it with a long swathing, protecting bandage over it, took my remedies, filled my hot-water bag, and turning out the light, glided back to my bathroom and scratched on the door in the bizarre fashion Mrs. Marks had requested of me.

THE HOME KITCHEN

Here Are a Few Favorite Recipes from the Orient

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

THE cooking of the people in the far east has always been a mystery to those of the western world.

Their use of rice in place of bread, the sherbets that replace our ice creams, the curry sauce that one must learn to like are all part of the mystery.

We are growing so neighborly with distant lands in these modern days, however, that we should learn a few of the food customs just to be "in the swim."

The few recipes that follow have been tested and will run true to form if the recipes are followed exactly, and should prove a real treat on the home table.

Fish Moloo.

Flake one pound of cold boiled fish. Cover the meat of a small grated fresh cocoanut, or a half-pound of the desiccated cocoanut with two cupfuls of boiling water. Let it stand for one hour. Then strain and squeeze the fibre dry in a cheese-cloth bag and set the liquid aside. Slice a Spanish onion very thin. Pound to a paste in a mortar a small piece of green ginger, adding a little water to it. Put two ounces of clarified butter into a hot saucepan. When hot fry the onion a delicate brown, then add the cocoanut liquid, the ginger, a dessert-spoonful of chopped pepper, a saltspoonful of salt, a half-teaspoonful of powdered tumeric, the fish, and last of all, a tablespoonful of vinegar. Cook gently. When the sauce is thickened, the dish is ready to serve. Serve the fish in the centre of a ring of freshly-boiled and dried-off rice.

Indian Omelet.

Beat the yolks of six fresh eggs until light. Then add a tablespoonful of onion juice, a little salt and pepper and a teaspoonful each of chopped parsley and peppers. Beat the egg-whites very stiff and fold them into the yolk mixture. Have an omelet pan hot and put into it a tablespoonful of clarified butter or ghee, as it is called. When it is melted and hot turn in the egg mixture. Do not stir, but as soon as the edges of the mass turn or fold it over with a spoon or broad knife and when it has a light brown color turn it on a hot dish and serve. Garnish with mint jelly.

Indian Tomatoes.

In a deep buttered pudding-dish place a layer of sliced tomatoes, dot with bits of butter, dust with pepper, salt and a few grains of curry powder. Then cover with a layer of bread crumbs. Continue this way until the dish is filled, four or five layers, finishing with a layer of crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Serve hot.

Dhal.

Wash a cupful of split Tom peas in cold water in a pail with a tight cover, put them [illegible] and add a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Let this simmer slowly until the peas are perfectly soft, then add a tablespoonful each of butter, cream and chopped onion. Turn into a deep dish, garnish with a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a tablespoonful of chopped pickles. Serve with boiled rice.

Sherbet.

Squeeze the juice of [illegible] oranges and add the grated rind of one orange. Add the juice of one lemon and one cupful of sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, then add a pint of water. Freeze to a mush and serve.

LONELY?

UPON a budding bough to which has come "a bud," a little songster carols welcome to the flowers of loveliness of all the world. And staring at the bird—just as the bird stares at her out of the corner of his watchful eye—SHE asks, precisely as the songster asks: "Are you lonely?" For each pictures the other, snug in her own nest some day, as each should be—safe with her mate.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT An Old House and Children

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

IT'S empty again—the beautiful big house on the hill—empty and forlorn. The green terrace slopes as gracefully as ever toward the blue sea; the vines are like a lace tracery upon the gray walls, and the star jasmine foams like a cataract from the balcony.

In the garden the early roses are budding and the gay little pansies nod and smile at the world as if there was no such thing as sorrow and disappointment and disillusion—no, not even in a sheltered garden.

Yet somehow I hate to look at the great house there on the hill. I haven't liked to look at it for months—and only two little years ago it was a delight even to think of it.

I used to wake up in the night when the stars were shining and the city was so still that you could hear the bell in the channel warning the great ships out of danger—and think happily of the joy and peace and gay, good-natured companionship that filled the gray old house on the hill so full that some of it spilled over and ran down the hillside into the neighborhood like a laughing waterfall.

It was a silent house when we first knew it—just a middle-aged man and his sweet, gentle wife and the servants, and a great, dignified dog who looked as if he had never even thought of being a puppy.

But one day news came to the gray house that the sister of the sweet-faced woman had gone to a far country and left behind her two daughters—little girls they were, just beginning to go to school.

A Change of Tenants

And the sweet-faced woman traveled across the continent. When she came back she brought two rosy little girls with her, and she and her husband adopted them, and, dear me, how the old house woke up!

Kindergarten songs and marching songs and funny little games and dolls on the front steps, and two kittens, one black and one white, and a whole litter of Irish terriers, and little parties and children running in and out—well, you should have seen it!

And one day the news came of the death of a friend, and the friend left a little boy behind him. The little boy was brought home to the gray house on the hill and he was adopted. And after that another boy came into the family, and there they were, the four children, like brothers and sisters, and the father and mother younger and busier and happier than they had ever been in their lives.

But the gray house, big as it was, was too cramped for the growing family. The children needed the country, and the older people wanted more room, too, so out they went to a big place down the peninsula with oaks and madrones and eucalyptus and a swimming pool and all kinds of gardens and ponies and things—and the house was let for a term of years to a man and his wife and three children—two girls and a boy.

"I'm glad," said the neighborhood, "that the new family has children, too—the old house will never be lonely again."

But it was very different with the new family. The mother was pretty and gay and quite young, and she didn't seem to have much time for her children.

The Old House Looks Sad

The little boy quarrelled with his sisters and threw stones at them, and the little girls were always crying—and nobody paid any attention to them but a cross French nurse who seemed to think they were nothing but a nuisance.

And there were noisy parties in the old house, and wild stories began to float about the neighborhood. And now they have separated, the man and the woman. The children are in boarding-schools, the girls in one and the boy in another, and the old house looks as if it wanted to cry.

What cruel folly, what insane delusions! What is there on earth that can compensate for the love and faith of little, trusting children?

I wish the young wife had been willing to be a little more patient, and I wish the young husband could have forgotten his grievances—couldn't they have patched up some kind of friendship for the sake of the children?

I wonder if they won't think about it all some day—and be sorry.

How Cold Cream Will Help You Win New Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

MOST women who have passed the first bloom of youth realize the value of a good cold cream in keeping a well-nourished skin. You must nourish your skin properly if it is to show the best beauty results.

If you are familiar with the texture of your skin a little casting about will find the right cream for you. This accomplished, you must realize there are two functions for cream—to nourish your skin and to cleanse it. Now there are many special creams made for each purpose, but it is very possible to find a pure cold cream that serves both purposes at once, depending upon the way it is applied.

Here is an excellent cream of this two-fold character, and I'll tell you exactly how to use it.

Lanolin	2½ ounces
Spermacetti	¾ ounce
Oil of sweet almonds	2 ounces
Fresh mutton tallow	2½ ounces
Rose water	2 ounces
Cocoanut oil	2 ounces
Tincture of benzoin	½ dram
Portugal extract	2 ounces
Oil of neroli	10 drops

Have your druggist mix this. You may find it a bit more expensive than some cold creams, but it pays to have the best where a delicate complexion is concerned.

Now, when you wish to use this as a cleanser, simply rub it carefully into your skin, leave it on a few minutes, and rub it off with a bit of soft old linen or gauze. You can buy small tissue paper squares put up in packages for this purpose. They are soft to your skin, and are convenient because you can destroy them after using.

When you want to feed your skin as you feed the roots of the delicate plant, you proceed in a different way from the cleansing process.

Wash your face especially before you go to bed at night. Use any pure good cold cream for this. Then with a soft cloth (I use a soft bandage) remove the dirt—rather the cream containing the dirt—from your face and neck. You can rub it gently, pressing the cloth in toward and outward. This drives away all danger of lines. Do not rub as if the purpose of it were to scrub off every bit of the cream and pore lining underneath, but rather that upward lift of sentiment which adds beauty to the contour.

Now dip your finger tips into a little of the cold cream and pat your face, neck and arms with them. Do this for a great number of minutes. Then, with a soft cloth, remove the cream. Do not be alarmed if you find that a great deal of the cream comes off with the cloth. That is as it should be. Then you will know that your skin is hungry or not. Pat the cold cream into your skin and see if it is absorbed quickly. If it is, your skin is in need of nourishment. If not, you may feed it less often.

Your skin shouldn't need feeding every night. You can test whether it's hungry or not by the aforesaid method, and if it is, twice a week should be often enough to feed it. Other nights your pores should be left free to breathe in the pure air that streams through your bedroom windows. This revitalizes your tissues and is equally as important as the cold cream which nourishes them.

And a last word of encouragement. Your skin, like your hair, is quick and generous in its response to kind treatment. Try treating it well and you will be gratified by the generous measure in which it enhances your charm.

VIRGINS MAY FACE PERJURY

TESTIMONY OF WOMEN IN HOUSE OF DAVID SCRUTINIZED.

Discrepancies in Ages Given by Brides in Group Weddings May Lead to an Inquiry by State's Attorney.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 30.—Perjury charges against "Virgins" of the House of David are being considered by State Attorney General A. B. Dougherty, officials disclosed today.

Dougherty is investigating reluctant testimony given by young girls of the cult before the "one man" grand jury of Judge Harry Dingeman, probing charges of immorality in the religious cult. Attention was also called by officials to discrepancies in ages given by brides participating in group weddings at the colony.

Some of the girls admitted swearing they were older than they really are.

Sheriff George C. Bridgeman today declared he "took little stock" in stories, credited to a grave digger, that a young girl with a bruised body had been buried in the House of David cemetery in Crystal Springs.

Judge Dinegman will resume his probe tomorrow. A group of new witnesses will be summoned.

Bridgeman said he had forwarded description of "King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the cult, to authorities at Maryville, O., who are holding a man suspected of being the missing leader.

No charges have been filed against Purnell. He is wanted, however, to testify before the "grand jury" probe and also to receive subpoenas in the state's quo warranto proceedings for receivership of the colony.

Authorities said if the suspect is Purnell, he may be held pending outcome of the investigation.

WILL FLEE IF GIVEN TO HER OWN MOTHER

Beatrice Nuttall of Chicago Sought by Two Women Wants to Continue to Live With Foster Parents.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Beatrice Nuttall, twelve, whose real and foster mothers have created a strange emotional drama by asking a court to decide her custody, today declared she will flee if awarded to the mother who gave her birth.

The child, after establishing a friendship between the two women, pleaded to live with Mrs. James Nuttall, the foster parent, who has kept her since she was one week old.

Mrs. Charles Morris, the real mother, started court action for Beatrice after a twelve-year search thru several states for her. She claimed Beatrice was taken from her and given in adoption by relatives who feared disgrace because the child was born out of wedlock.

Mrs. Morris later married Clayton B. Klinger, whom she says is the father of the child, and he has been subpoenaed to testify when the case is heard before two superior court judges tomorrow.

"Mrs. Nuttall is the only mother I have ever known," said Beatrice today. "I love her. If they take me away from her I'll run away and after a long time I'll walk back here to Mrs. Nuttall's home."

All Chicago was stirred by the tangle of mother love today. A dozen of more ministers preached sermons on the case yesterday and church congregations offered prayers that Superior Judges Joseph B. David and Claire C. Edwards be given divine inspiration in wisely deciding the fate of the girl.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 30—Four nonstop piano players after breaking the world record of twenty-nine hours continuous playing, were still running their blistered fingers over the ivories here this morning.

At 8:05 the four had played forty-two hours.

Lee Harmand, twenty-three, claimed the long distance roller skating championship today. The Houston youth glided continuously for forty-eight hours.

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

The Story of a Man Who Made Good

BY JOHN W. KANE

EX-CONVICT NO. 1666.

(Copyright, 1922, in the United States, Canada, Great Britian and South America, by the North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER VII.

On the afternoon of January 11, 1904—the first Tuesday after the tragedy— the chief of detectives and the chief of police took me in a carriage from the state prison to the city hall for my preliminary hearing. The corridors of the building were packed with all sorts of persons. If any members of the mob that tried to lynch me were present, they did nothing to show their special interest in the case—assuming that that interest still existed.

I had employed a firm of attorneys in a tentative way—the "if" being whether I should be able to raise some money. They had agreed to represent me at the preliminary anyway, and the junior member of the firm was on hand.

The justice of the peace was a one-armed man and very savage looking. Whether that look was natural or assumed I do not know. After the complaint had been read to me, including the charge that I "wilfully, maliciously, feloniously and of malice aforethought with specific intent to kill and murder," had slain the man—the authorities having decided to try one case at a time—I saw that scowling face of the justice turned toward me, and he said:

"You have heard the reading of the complaint: How do you plead?—Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty," I answered.

"And are you ready for trial?" he inquired next.

My attorney was on his feet. I sat down.

"If your honor please," he addressed the court, "the defendant desires to waive his right to a hearing at this time; he does not, however, waive his right to object to the jurisdiction of this court—the committing magistrate."

No Indictment Needed.

I do not recall at this time what further was said in connection with the proceedings, which were very brief. In that state no indictment by a grand jury was necessary, the practice being to hold a defendant—bind him over—to the district court, wherein the district attorney would file an information charging anew there the offense, and he would be tried upon that information. The committing magistrate duly ordered me held for the action of the higher court and I was placed in the custody of the sheriff of that county.

After court was adjourned, and before the sheriff came to slip handcuffs on, my attorney made to me a brief explanation in low words.

"I raised that objection," said he, "as there might be a technical point involved springing from the wording of the statute regarding what courts may act as committing magistrates in a felony case. You see we've got to begin right at the first looking for every possible opportunity of guarding our interests. You know, Mr. Kane, without my telling you so, that the best we may hope for is to save your life—that is, for the present; and I have an idea," he added hesitatingly, "that we won't have so easy a time in the matter, either."

The sheriff, a portly man with a well-kept mustache, came up smiling and shook hands, first with my attorney and then with me.

"Now, then, John—I believe I'd rather call you by your first name," said he; "You heard the judge say that I'm to take you down to live with us for a while, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir," I answered; "I heard every word of it."

"All right, then," he continued in true western accent, "if you're not ashamed to walk out of the room with me, we'll go. And John"—he began to reach for an inside pocket—"as much as we dislike some duties, we have to perform them." And he held out some bright handcuffs and snapped them on my wrists.

That sheriff was the second one I had met since my arrest for whom I entertained a real liking.

Ten Minutes to Cell.

My partner, who had been brought down from the penitentiary along with me as a witness against me, and was also placed in the sheriff's custody for safe keeping, was escorted by a deputy sheriff. Within ten minutes from the time of court adjournment we arrived at the county jail.

After supper, which showed me that the food was simply awful, I was taken to a cell on the second floor. And during my whole stay there I had a cell to myself, for which I was truly thankful. There were but twelve other prisoners on that upper tier, which caused the air to be better, and after retiring to my cot I slept without a single break for almost eight hours.

Other inmates were talking back and forth in low tones when I awoke the next morning. Even had I not seen them on the preceding evening, their talk would have told me that they were not so much the flotsam and jetsam, dregs-of-creation type, as were those I had seen on the floor below.

"Hey, Fred!" I heard one call out—"this is visiting day. I'll bet that your old lady won't come to see you today."

"Wish I was as sure of a million dollars as I am that she will," was the reply from someone near me.

"Oh, I dunno," said the first voice. "Don't be too sure."

"Yes, but I'm doubly sure—my little wife is a sticker; she'll stick even if I have to go to the big house."

At that juncture I heard a gong ring somewhere in the building—gongs seem to be an inseparable part of jails and other prisons—and the man called Fred spoke to me.

"Hello, you new man there!"

"Yes," I answered.

Jail is Like a Revolving Door.

"Be careful and don't let the rotary catch your hand or anything—they'll start it in a couple of minutes," he warned me.

The rotary—for that jail was of the old-fashioned upright-cone-shaped style, all the cells inside of a revolving apparatus something like the partitioned door at the Kansas City postoffice and in other buildings, soon began to turn, and as each cell came before an opening in the outer circle of bars, the inmates stepped out. There were twenty cells in all but only part on that floor were occupied.

After breakfast, which we had in a side room near the rotary, I learned from Fred that visitors were permitted to call there twice a week—Wednesdays and Sundays.

"On this floor they're a rather decent set of guys," he assured me, "and with everybody in their cells, the jailer just lets my wife come right on up here. She sits just outside the bars in front of my cell, and we can visit there for an half-hour or more."

It occurred to me that visiting with one's wife thru a set of large upright bars was rather odd. I made no comment, however, except to ask a few questions about the place in general. Nor did I then have the remotest idea that because of the visits of Fred's wife, there would be added to this narrative some most unusual incidents—because of the interest of a girl of independent means and her confidence in me.

The first year that the yard was operated it closed March 31, 1922. It opened for business again October 9, 1922, and the report covers until the end of April, the close of the season. The yard was open 197 days of the season of 1921-22 and 201 days during the season of 1922-23. The coal sold and delivered for each month that the yard was operated since it opened is submitted:

Over sixteen hundred tons were sold in January and over two thousand tons in February. The latter month showed the highest sales for the season of 1922-23. During the second season 678 more tons of coal were sold, tho the opening of the municipal yard was nearly a month later.

BUSINESS NOT SO HEAVY

Temporary Lull in Heavy Demand on the City Council to Push Public Improvements.

A light menu was forecasted for the city council Monday afternoon. A temporary lull in the heavy demand for more paving, sewer and water districts was the cause. Property owners petitioned the council to create a paving district on Orchard street between Twenty-seventh and Thirty-third streets. Paving district No. 544, Rose street from Eleventh to Fifteenth streets was created.

The Abel Construction company being the lowest bidder, the city engineer recommended that it be awarded the contract for paving Thirteenth street from D to B streets. The bid was $8,381.14.

An ordinance was submitted to create a paving district on Orchard street from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-seventh streets. Another ordinance introduced was to create a paving district on Marion street from Fourteenth to Fifteenth streets. The city engineer recommended that J. L. Deffenbaugh as the lowest bidder be awarded the contract for sewer district 246 at a cost of $585. The city clerk was asked to advertise for bids for the construction of sewer district No. 250. It comprises Franklin and Sumner streets and Twenty-eighth street to Jefferson avenue. The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for the construction of water district No. 51. The city engineer estimated the cost of the job at $2,250.

LINCOLN IS ASKED TO HONOR VETERANS

Mayor Issues Proclamation Requesting Old Soldiers Be Welcomed and Buildings Be Decorated During Encampment.

Lincoln will entertain the state encampment of the G. A. R. and allied patriotic organizations Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and Mayor Zehrung Monday issued a proclamation asking citizens to give the members of the patriotic organizations a rousing welcome by decorating their places of business and their residences and display much enthusiasm during the parade Tuesday morning. The proclamation follows:

"Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 1, 2 and 3, Lincoln will have the honor of entertaining for the second time in sixteen years, the department of Nebraska Grand Army of the Republic and allied organizations, including the Women's Relief corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, Daughters of Veterans, and Sons of Veterans' auxiliary.

"One year ago Lincoln entertained this organization and the reception they received at that time prompted them to return to Lincoln this year. I know of no organization that meets in Lincoln that should be more welcome than these veterans of the civil war and as mayor of the city I wish to officially extend to them a hearty welcome in this, their forty-seventh annual encampment.

"I particularly urge that the business houses, public buildings, and residences decorate during the three days of this encampment.

"On Wednesday, May 2, at 10:30 a parade will take place and the route has been so arranged as to take in a large part of the business district and there should not be a building on the route that is not appropriately decorated.

"Lincoln is not noted for its display of enthusiasm during the passing of a parade, but I hope that in this case the citizens will show their appreciation of the boys of '61 by bestowing upon them generous applause as they pass them the first time, some of them for the last time. Let us also hope that every man will remove his hat as the flag passes by.

"This will probably be the last time for several years that the G. A. R. will meet in Lincoln and it is desired that their reception, not only during the parade, but while they are our guests be such that the city of Lincoln, named for their martyred president, will always be first in their memory."

Bills to Do With Tax Exemption and Tax Repeal Will Remain Dead.

An attempt was made in the house to revive the much killed S. F. 24 Monday afternoon. The attempt to reconsider lost by a vote of 49 to 44.

Blanding of Cass attempted to revive H. R. 111 in the senate. This is a bill to repeal the intangible tax laws. The motion was defeated by a large vote.

INVESTIGATE CHECK CHARGE

Two With a Supply of Chicago Bank Checks Are Being Grilled by Detectives.

Frank A. Barton, forty-three years old, and Elizabeth Nolan, twenty-six were arrested late Saturday. Captain Walter Anderson of the city detectives says that checks to the amount of $750 were found on them. The checks were made out on the State bank of Chicago. Chief of Police Johnstone received a telegram from Chief of Police Collins of Chicago, saying that the two were unknown at the bank. Miss Nolan purchased $96 worth of wearing apparel at a local store Saturday and attempted to pass a $100 check. An attempt was made to cash a $75 check, according to Captain Anderson.

BIG HAND TO A. N. MATHERS

HOUSE RECOGNIZES SERVICES OF ITS SPEAKER.

Presented With Gold Watch and Fob as Token of Esteem in Which He Is Held by Both Parties.

A. N. Mathers, speaker of the Nebraska house of representatives, was nearer the embarrassment stage Monday than at any time during the session. He was presented with a gold watch and fob by the house membership. Representative O'Malley, democrat, made the presentation. On the back of the watch is engraved these words:

"To our Speaker, Hon. A. N. Mathers."

"Questions have arisen," said Mr. O'Malley in his presentation speech, "where I was on one side and you were on the other. There have been times almost without number when decisions were left to you. The sentiment of the house is that you have fulfilled the trust placed in you. There have been hard tought issues. The position of the speaker has been a trying one. Yet in every instance, you have brought credit and have justified the confidence in which you have been held. We present this little token in appreciation of your fairness and impartiality."

Speaker Mathers said that he had appreciated every hour of the session.

"My one hope and purpose," he said, "has been that when you go home and I go home we all may feel and know that I have not betrayed the trust which you so generously placed in me. My greatest ambition is to leave behind a good name."

DAM CASE TRIAL STILL ON

Mass of Evidence Being Taken in Injunction Suit Against Capital Beach Project.

"The dam case" as it is being called by court house employes, is on again in District Judge Morning's court. It began last week, but was halted temporarily on account of juvenile court work. There is a possibility that the trial will take a great part of the present week. Formal evidence was being taken Monday morning as to water levels, ownership of land, etc.

Tillman Flader, the Oak creek drainage district and eleven landholders near Capital Beach are seeking to restrain the Central Realty & Investment company from constructing a dam to raise of level of the water in Oak creek to help keep Capital Beach lake full, and to prevent seepage from the lake into the stream. They claim the dam will back water up and make their lands swampy.

BELIEVE WOMAN AIDS GANG

Wholesale Car Stripping Results From Difficulty of Disposing of Stolen Cars, Police Say.

OMAHA, April 30.—Belief that a gang of "auto strippers" may be assisted by a woman was expressed yesterday by a detective who investigated the stripping of a car owned by Phillip Bruce. Footprints resembling a woman's shoe were plainly visible in the soft earth near the car, they said. Similar discoveries have been made in other cases.

Wholesale car stripping, police say, is the result of difficulty in disposing of stolen cars. Accessories sell readily and with less possibility of detection. Automobile owners are warned by Police Chief Nicoll to avoid parking cars near their homes for the night, thus reducing the possibility of theft.

C. H. ROGERS ON THE STAND

INDICTED ON CHARGE OF USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD.

Dr. Rogers Says He Did Not Know of $2,000,000 Purchase That Sent Guaranties Company on Rocks.

OMAHA, Neb., April 30.—Rev. Charles H. Rogers took the stand in federal court today in the case in which he is indicted with thirteen others on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Dr. Rogers said that he had been a director and also manager of the Lincoln branch of the Guaranties Securities company and that he had not knowingly misrepresented the bonds and certificates that he had sold, that every statement made in literature and letters to him to be true or were made on the authority of other officers of the company in whom he had confidence.

It was the purchase of $2,000,000 of bonds of the Colonial Timber & Coal company of West Virginia that sent the Guaranties company on the rocks. Dr. Rogers said he did not know of this purchase until after it was made, and that he was told the security was ample.

DE VILLA TRIAL IS RECITED IN BRIEFS

Omaha Italian Convicted of Liquor Conspiracy Takes Case to Federal Court of Appeals.

The government's side of the argument over whether Frank De Villa, Omaha Italian, was justly convicted last fall of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, is set forth in the brief just filed by District Attorney Don W. Stewart. De Villa has been under sentence of two years in Leavenworth since October 14 and his three alleged fellow conspirators were committed last fall after pleading guilty to selling and delivering fifteen gallons of liquor to Jack Hesse the night of January 17, 1922. One of them, Vinci Alfio, escaped from Leavenworth a few weeks ago. The others, Fred Veccho and Ralpr Piscopo, are still doing time.

De Villa contends that he was not in the deal in which the other three were engaged when they were arrested at Hesse's place while loading the liquor to take it to the home of Charles Hutchinson and that while the two Lincoln men had visited him at his sofe drink parlor in Omaha the night of December 21 preceding this incident, they had made no arrangements for liquor. He denied he was in Hesse's place except on January 12, with two men not defendants in this case, when he did in fact try to make a sale to Hesse, but again arrangements were not completed. He admits the other three defendants were there that night too, but denies any unity of design with them in connection with the sale and delivery to Hesse, such as would be necessary to uphold the charge of conspiracy.

The government contends that all conversations relative to the deal were with De Villa, and the fact that he was not with the other three when the liquor was delivered does not prove he was not in the conspiracy to which they pleaded guilty. It is pointed out that De Villa was evasive in his testimony, changing his statements several times, and that he could have been the leader in the conspiracy even without taking part in delivering the liquor. Decisions are cited to show that conspiracy may be proved by circumstantial evidence, since it is practically impossible to get direct evidence showing meetings of the conspirators and agreement to carry out certain plans. The district attorney contends that evidence in this trial is sufficient to give rise to a natural inference that the overt acts admitted were in furtherance of a common design.

PLAN DEFENSE FOR SYRIANS

FRENCH MAY SEND 20,000 COLONIALS AGAINST TURKS.

Three Ottoman Divisions Mass on Syria's Frontier—General Weygand Leaves for Alexandretta.

PARIS, April 30.—General Maginot is preparing to send 20,000 colonial troops to Syria, following the massing of three Turkish divisions on the Syrian frontier.

The French plan to bring their garrison at the danger point up to 46,000.

General Weygand is leaving Friday aboard the cruiser Lorraine for Alexandretta where he will be available instantly to command an army if the necessity arises.

LAUSANNE, April 30.—A French military gesture against Turkey caused grave concern at the near east peace conference today.

Delegates at the conference awaited the arrival of General Pelle, [illegible] French near east expert, from [illegible] to see to what extent the French [illegible] pect to carry their move. It is feared that it may influeice the allied and Turkish delegates here who are trying to find a suitable basis for peace.

General Pelle has been instructed, it is said, to tell Ismet Pasha, the Turkish leader at the conference here, that the French government regards the Turkish movement of troops as an "incitement to war." This cannot be tolerated by the French government, which trusts Ismet personally but fears the general Turkish attitude, Pelle is expected to say.

He is to add, it is said, that France cannot trust some of the elements at Angora who might wish to stir up trouble at the Syrian border, in order to influence the outcome of the present peace confab.

Reports were circulated more than a week ago that two divisions of Turkish forces had been moved toward Syria to a spot where they could easily reach the border in a day's travel.

THREE ARE VICTIMS OF A CRIME WAVE

Several Probably Fatally Shot in Omaha and Prominent Woman Attempts to Commit Suicide.

CRIME WAVE TOMMYROT?

OMAHA, April 30.—While the Rev. J. W. G. Fast was preaching a sermon on "Peace on Earth," in which he declared talk of a crime wave in Omaha was "tommyrot, burglars were ransacking his home. They obtained more than $1,000 in money, jewelry, clothing and furniture.

OMAHA, April 30.—Three persons probably fatally shot and a suicide attempt by a prominent Omaha woman were the high spots on the police blotter over the week end here.

Jim Corbino, Havelock, Neb., boilermaker, was captured at Ames, Ia., where he had fled following his shooting Saturday night of Anna Greco, fourteen, his sweetheart, and her father, Alfred Greco. Corbino, who had been ordered to discontinue his attentions to the girl by her parents, entered Miss Greco's bed room thru a second story window at midnight and shot her six times when she refused to elope with him.

Tris Speaker's Indians Have Everything Their Own Way in the American League

CLEVELAND PLAYING GREATEST BASEBALL

Game Heart and Hard Hitting Keep Lead for Giants in National in Spite of Pitching Staff's Ascension.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, April 30. — Tris Speaker's Cleveland Indians are the current sensation of the American league. With nine victories out of twelve games, the Indians are not only leading the league but they are playing the best ball in the majors.

Speaker is getting good pitching and good hitting, even if the defense of the club is rather sloppy at times. The Indians at present are the only club in the two leagues that have the pitchers and batters both working.

Giant Pitchers Go Up.

The Giants are leading the National league with nine victories out of thirteen games. It would be silly to say that the world's champions are not playing good ball, but they are not keeping up their stride. McGraw's pitching staff has gone up again. Fifteen pitchers have been used in four games and it is only a game heart and great hitting that is keeping the Giants in the lead.

Detroit needs only some pitching to make the strong bid for the pennant that is expected of them, and Ty Cobb is beginning to get that pitching. The Tigers are the heaviest batting club in the major league and they are just as game as the Giants. The club is in second place now, and unless they collapse they will be up around there for the biggest part of the race.

The Browns and the White Sox continue to be the prize busts of the two bigleagues. Neither of them is getting the expected pitching and the Browns are having trouble filling the shoes of George Sisler. Durst, a rookie, has been replaced at first by Marty McManus, their star second baseman, and, altho he has been doing well, the defense efficiency of the team has been decreased with Foster on second base.

Both Quaker Teams Are High.

Both Philadelphia clubs in the first division is a rather unusual spectacle ever for early season. The Athletics are beginning to look like a real first division club, but the Phils cannot expect to remain up very long. The Phils are a game club, however, and Art Fletcher has them playing real baseball.

The Cubs are continuing a pleasant surprise. The Pirates and the Reds are doing well to keep up in the first division, as neither one of them has hit its real stride.

DO YOU KNOW?

"Who is the best jockey in the United States and Europe?" TURF FAN.

Earl Sande is regarded as the best rider in America and Frank O'Neill former American is looked upon as the best jockey in Europe.

"What did the St. Louis Browns do in the American League pennant race last season?" M. N. E.

The Browns dropped to third place in the first week and went into second place the last week in April. They jumped into the lead the second week in June and remained there for two weeks. They then dropped into second place and finished there.

"Why were the Walker Cup international golf matches played in England this year?" GOLFER.

The Walker Cup is not one of the trophies that must be defended in the home country of the possessing team. American team defeated the British team decisively in the United States last summer. The title to the cup provides that it should bring about as many exchanges of visits as possible and the American team decided to go to England because it would be unfair to expect the British to go to the heavy expenses of two trans-oceanic trips on successive years.

"Wasn't Jimmy O'Connell found good enough to play as a regular with the New York Giants?" BASEBALLER.

The $75,000 California boy does not hit against left-handed pitching because Bill Cunningham, utility outfielder, is stronger against southpaws and is not so effective against right handers. In using the shift, Manager McGraw is using a piece of defensive strategy that has become a vogue with managers who have a lot of good hitting utility men.

GOLFERS, YOUR ATTENTION!

The Journal presents Tuesday to its readers the first of the series of special telegrams and cables in which Walter Hagen, foremost golfer in the world, will describe exclusively for this paper the big events of the golf season just opening—tourneys on both sides of the Atlantic, including the play for the British open championship at Troon, in which Hagen will defend his title and try again to bring to his own country, America, the British cup which he won sensationally last year. Among the events he will describe in detail are the British amateur and the American open tourneys.

This special correspondence by Hagen makes an event for every person interested in golf. In the first letter, writen in Hagen's last moments in America before sailing, he sizes up the British championship situation, discusses the chances of the American entrants including himself, and frankly considers the factors which gave him his victory last year and the conditions which he must meet in the approaching contest.

The first Hagen story appears in Tuesday's Evening Journal.

The Greatest Double Play.

SOUTHWORTH SLIDES TO LEFT OF PLATE AND IS PUT OUT BY SNYDER
BOECKEL SLIDES TO THE LEFT OF PLATE AND IS PUT OUT BY SNYDER
BAGWELL DOUBLES
SOUTHWORTH HOMERS HOME

"One of the strangest plays I've ever witnessed in baseball," was the way John McGraw expressed the following incident:

It was in the fifth inning of the second game of the recent double-header between the World's Champions and Braves at Boston.

Southworth was on second and Boeckel on first with one out. Bagwell drove the ball over Ross Young's head for two hours. The Giant right fielder recovered the ball and relayed it to Frisch, who threw to the plate to head off Southworth.

Southworth injured his leg last year and is a slow runner. Boeckel caught him at second and could have passed him if the rules permitted. Boeckel ran about six feet in back of the Boston captain. Frisch's throw was perfect to Snyder, and Frank put the ball on Southworth as he came sliding in to the plate. Boeckel, seeing that Southworth was trapped, slid on the opposite side of the rubber where Snyder made the play on Southworth. After touching Southworth, Snyder threw his body around and managed to nail Boeckel as his feet came into the plate.

This play was one of the most unusual double plays in baseball, and many of the players said it was the first time they had ever seen its like.

FORM OF AMERICAN GOLFERS SURPRISES

Putting of Jess Sweetser Described as "Magical" by English Experts—Other Players Go Good.

LONDON, April 30. — Surprising form of the American golf team in the practice matches at Rye Saturday caused British critics some excitement for their week-end columns.

The Yankee team put up a most formidable exhibition of fine golf, in view of the shortage of practice, the experts agreed. All were excellent at putting, but Jess Sweetser, the New York star was hailed as the greatest. The critics refered to his work on the greens as "magical" and pointed to his "terrible accuracy."

It was pointed out that Sweetser, in a four-ball match, beat W. E. Holderness, the British amateur champion, and E. H. Gillies, former winner of the St. Gorge's challenge cup all by himself. His partner, Francis Ouimet of Boston, was way off form and nothing more than a "passenger" carried along by Sweetser.

The entire American team is pleased at its success, and members predict an improvement in their games.

CRITICS HOLD HIS IDEAS ARE MUDDLED

Champion Maintains It Is Good Sportsmanship to Even Up Bad Decision of Officials Against Opponent.

NEW YORK, April 30.—William T. Tilden, the reigning monarch of the tennis court, aroused a lot of critical comment recently in one of his literary efforts when he said it was the sporting thing to do to even up an advantage obtained by a bad decision of the officials against an opponent.

The champion, to make the point clearer, argued that any fair sportsman, who should score a point on a questionable decision of the judges should make it even by "blowing" the next point with a drive into the net or outside the lines, or something like that.

The point was made by some qualified critics that the sentiment of fair play might be praiseworthy, but an open slam at the judgment of the umpires would hold the officials up to ridicule and taht such tactics were anything but good sportsmanship.

Facts are Against Him.

Tilden said that all the good players have made it ethical to even up after mistakes in official judgment, but the facts do not bear out his statement.

In the final match of the last indoor national championships, Vinnie Richards was playing Francis T. Hunter. In the last game, Richards scored two service aces on drives that Hunter thought were outside. Richards, however, made no attempt to even up, and he accepted both decisions and won the championship. Hunter lost his head and banged his racket down on the floor.

No one criticised Richards for accepting the judgment of the officials, and Hunter was severely called in the press for his demonstration. Hunter's act was no more of an insult to the officials than Richards' would have been if he slammed into the net because both would have been an open affront.

Sportsmanship is always to be desired in any sport and there are occasions when it is the sporting thing to do to even up after a bad break against an opponent.

During one of the big matches between William M. Johnston and James O. Anderson, the Australian star, Anderson slipped to his knees in trying to return one of Johnston's volleys and the little Californian blew the next purposely by driving out of bounds.

That is admirable sportsmanship!

Another Title to U. S.

Bill Johnston's decision to journey over to England and play in the British national tennis championships at Wimbledon almost automatically brings another English title to this country. Bill Tilden held the title in 1920 and 1921, but he did not defend it last summer, and Gerald aPtterson, the Australian, won the championship. Tilden is not going over this year and there is no other player in the world who stands good enough on form to beat the little California wonder. If Vinnie Richards makes the trip the final round, no doubt, will be furnished by two Americans.

Richards might pull a surprise and beat Johnston. The Fordham boy has been playing in such perfect form that several of the good court critics are expecting him to make a most powerful bid for the American title this summer.

BEATRICE, Neb., April 29.—The Beatrice Blues defeated Auburn semi-pros here Sunday with a score of 9 to 1. The feature of the game was base running by the Beatrice team. Batteries—Auburn, Davis and Flick; Beatrice, Unger, Gilpin and Tinder, Sullinger, Prejeau.

SPORTING GOSSIP AND COMMENT

BELTZER'S CLANSMEN OUTCLASS WHITE SOX

Hold Visitors Runless Until Ninth When Two Boots and a Single Ruins Chance for Shutout—Six Pitchers Used.

By John Bentley.

Almost a grandstand full of fans watched the Links in action for the first time this season, Sunday afternoon when Buck's clan walloped Eddie Holmes' White Sox from Omaha 8 to 1. And in boxing parlance it was a great lacing. It got so one-sided that there was no doubt about the outcome but several pieces of neat fielding kept the fans pacified.

Judging from first appearances, which are sometimes misleading, it looks like Buck had assembled a faster team than represented the capital city last year. As one grey-haired fan who doesn't miss a game remarked, "They're a bunch of youthful speed demons."

Outfielders On Their Horses.

The outfield had plenty of chances to stretch its legs and there wasn't an error chalked against any one of the three. In fact there were no errors in the Lincoln column until the ninth inning when VanHoutte fought a slow roller with little success and Tanner got ahead of himself trying to square away a double play and dropped a throw from Bondurant.

The Links hopped away to a three-run lead in the third inning. Four more in the fifth iced the contest and Cleveland went around for the last tally in the seventh.

The Lincoln club clouted eleven safeties from the offerings of three White Sox pitchers while the Sox were nicking a brace of Links' moundmen for six, all of which were scattered.

Buck's clan looked good on the bases. They took a bunch of chances and got away with them. Kinkel, right fielder, had a big day. He accepted four difficult chances and singled twice in four times up.

Eller, Dillon and VanHoutte stood on the mound for three innings each, and had the Sox pretty well muddled up.

College View Loses Opener.

A five-inning curtain raiser between the College View pastimers and a team picked from the Lincoln squad resulted in an 8 to 6 count with the Links on the best end.

The neighbor's children outhit the Links but Bloodgood, in centerfield, kicked too many flies at critical times.

Manager Beltzer has a tough job ahead of him. He must cut his squad down to eighteen for the opening game and in two weeks carve it to fourteen players. With the material at hand he is finding it no easy task.

There probably will be no more exhibition games before the big opening with Norfolk, next Friday afternoon. The squad will be cut in half and play each other every afternoon. All fans are welcome to view these games.

The American Legion baseball team took first place in the standings of the city league teams Sunday by adding a 7 to 2 victory from the Lawlor Sports to its list of wins. Munson's Fords won their first league victory by defeating the Dewitt Grain nine, 13 to 5.

The Legion, by winning the first two games are again making a strong bid for high honors in the pennant race. Home runs by Thomsen and Lamb in the fifth helped pile up the score. Hudson, who knocked a three bagger, scored on Lamb's circuit clout. Bishop, twirling for the legion allowed but five hits and struck out nine batters. Lang, pitching for Lawlors, was touched for twelve hits and got nine strike outs. Hudson, shortstop on the legion nine, was the batting sensation of the game, getting a single, a double, and a three base hit out of five times at bat. He scored three of the winning runs.

The Munson-Dewitt game was loosely played but finally settled down to a pitcher's battle. Kaiser, working on the mound for Munson's, was touched for eight hits while Martin and Lefler of the Dewitt team allowed a total of thirteen hits. Walroth, Dewitt outfielder, got a long blow to left field in the seventh inning that was good for a home run. Martin of Dewitt was freely clouted and was relieved by Lefler. The scores:

EXPRESS HITS MOTOR LOAD

Train From San Bernardino Strikes Automobile at Alhambra, Cal., Sunday Evening, Resulting in Tragedy.

The express train was from San Bernardino.

CITY ELECTION DRAWS NEAR

Some Question Result of Primary as a Prediction Basis.

Candidates for the city commission won places in the following order in the primary, and some attaches of the city hall look for the order of the first five to be maintained in the election, while E. H. Shroder and some other active Bryan workers believe the positions will be largely changed:

First Five.	Second Five.
Dalton	Ludy
E Shroder	Love
Pritchett	Miller
Wright	Whitmore
Cowgill	Dennis

Friends of H. J. Whitmore say that the active opposition of the Bryan forces caused his low placing. He was not acceptable to the E. H. Schroder organization which has announced a "municipal ownership league" ticket with Lord, Cowgill, Goss, Mills and Dennis as the candidates. Naturally this would line Whitmore up with the four present commissioners and this may offset in the election what he lost in the primaries because of the crossing of issues.

The city election will be held Tuesday. It is apparent to political observers that a heavy vote will not be polled.

The "municipal ownership league" candidates have been making an active campaign while the present city commissioners, all candidates for re-election, have made no campaign at all. They have taken the stand that their record speaks for itself and that the people should decide without issues being befogged by much speaking and misrepresentation.

EMERSON HOUGH IS DEAD

Writer of Frontier and Pioneer Stories Passes Away at Height of Career.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Emerson Hough, noted writer of stories dealing with American frontier and pioneer life, died at the Evanston hospital today.

He was sixty-six years old.

His two most widely known stories "The Covered Wagon" and "North of 36," dealing with early life of the western plains, are now attracting widespread attention.

Hough died following an operation Saturday for an intestinal obstruction. He was taken seriously ill last Tuesday and was removed from his home in Highland Park, Ill., to the hospital.

The funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday at the residence and the body will be taken to Galesburg, Ill., for burial.

Hough was regarded as one of the most vivid and true portrayers of the old west among present day authors. He was born at Newton, Ia., and has lived the life of which he wrote.

He traveled extensively in his youth over the wildest portions of the west. It was while on a trip thru Yellowstone park that he gathered data and wrote articles which resulted in an act by congress protecting the park buffalo.

He was a graduate of the University of Iowa.

Prominent among scores of books, short stories and magazines written by Hough are:

"The Singing Mouse Stories," one of his initial works; "The Mississippi Bubble," "The Way to the West," "The Sowing," "The Purchase Price," "The Man Next Door," and "The Sagebrusher."

Hough married Charlotte A. Cheesebro of Chicago in 1897.

Modern Mint Julep.

Some New York friends asked a Kentucky colonel if he would make them a mint julep. The colonel brightened up at this, assuring them that he would be glad to oblige. Then they went on to explain that they had no real whisky, producing a bottle of synthetic stuff. The expert said he would try to make it do.

"And we have no mint."

"Never mind," said the colonel. "With this liquor I can do just as well with parsley."—Chicago News.

MAY JOIN IN PEACE CONFAB

POSSIBILITY SEEN THAT U. S. MAY DISCUSS REPARATIONS.

Germany's Offer Probably to Provide Whether She Will Pay Definite Sum Determined by International Conference.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The possibility of the United States participating in the international conference to bring about a final settlement of the reparations crisis was again in the foreground of discussion in Washington today.

This aroused interest in connection with dispatches bringing fresh news about new reparations offers Germany is to make.

It now seems fairly well established that Germany's offer will provide that the question of whether and how much Germany should pay over a definite sum expected to be put forward, be determined by an international conference of financial and economic experts, as proposed by Secretary of State Hughes.

BERLIN, April 30.—The German cabinet has decided to offer France thirty billion gold marks instead of twenty, it was learned here today. A further increase may be agreed upon if the experts decide that Germany is capable of paying.

The German offer, which probably will be embodied in the note to be sent to France Tuesday night, also woud safeguard France against eGrman military attacks. It demands immediate exacuation of the Ruhr at the moment of signature.

LINCOLN SCHOOL LEVY ADOPTED BY SENATE

Conference Committee Recommends Referendum on Flat Levy Not to Exceed Fifteen Mills.

The senate adopted a conference committee report on the Lincoln school district levy and the house will act later in the day. The senate committee comprising Anderson, Warner and Barr, recommended that the senate amendment be retained but that it be changed to call for a referendum vote on a maximum levy of 15 mills instead of 20 mills. If the school board desires to submit a flat levy of 15 mills it has this power under the senate amendment. The original bill as amended in the house limited the expenditure of the district to $1,200,000 a year. It was rumored during the forenoon that the conference committee would strike out the entire senate amendment.

The senate passed one of the bills necessary to give Lincoln a municipal court, but laid the other over for correction.

H. R. 722, to permit banks to participate in federal loans to farmers, introduced at the request of Governor Bryan, was passed without opposition.

In committee of the whole the senate advanced H. R. 724 to third reading. This bill reduced the state inspection fee for gasoline and kerosene from 6 cents to two cents as a result of a decision of the supreme court.

S. F. 332, the irrigation committee's water right treaty with Colorado was advanced to third reading and will pass without opposition. It contains an agreement that Nebraska will be content with 120 cubic feet per second average flow from the South Platte river, a concession never before made by the state or water users. As a matter of fact water users are now getting no water from that stream.

Hastings was willing to have his bill, S. F. 299 indefinitely postponed. It repeals the present law so far as it relates to the charging of fees for oil inspection.

On motion of Wiltse all senate files in the hands of standing committees were indefinitely postponed.

Senator R. B. Howell was to be given a hearing before the senate committee on irrigation at 1:45 on H. R. 597, the water power district bill.

Good asked the senate to pass a resolution to permit Jesse F. Hopkins of Scottsbluff to sue the department of public works for funds alleged to be due for excavating rock for road work. The motion failed to carry.

BROTHERS-IN-LAW IN DUEL

Chicago Realtor Killed and Relative and Business Partner Suffers With Razor Wounds.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Investigation into a strange duel between two brothers-in-law, wherein Charles W. Mullenix, prominent Englewood realtor was killed, was continued by police today.

Mullenix, was shot to death. James Eustace Berry, his business partner, as well as relative by marriage, is in a hospital suffering from wounds inflicted with a razor.

Relatives told police the two men had been quarreling for a week. They met late yesterday in Mullenix's apartment for what relatives supposed was a "peace meeting," after a fist fight and the killing ensued.

Berry claimed he fired in self-defense after Mullenix attacked him with the razor.

HURT IN FALL FROM WAGON

JAMES MERRIMAN SUFFERS A BROKEN LEG, BRUISED HEAD.

Street Worker Believed to Have Fallen While Unconscious Following Stroke—Now in Hospital.

James Merriman, 2728 E, suffered a broken leg and bad bruises and cuts about the head Monday morning when he fell from a wagon at Seventeenth and Ryons. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Splain & Schnell's ambulance.

Mr. Merriman was engaged in cleaning the street, and the paving where he fell is perfectly smooth. Superintendent Overton said, and so he supposed a stroke of epilepsy or something similar had caused the man to fall. Mr. Merriman was unconscious when picked up and was not able to tell anything of the accident when he reached the hospital. Neighbors say he is subject to fainting spells resembling strokes. He is about forty years old and has a wife and two children.

WANTS DEPUTIES TO AID BRINGING CLARA

Sheriff Biscailluse Fears Friends of Mrs. Phillips Will Free Her on Trip From Honduras.

LOS ANGELES, April 30.—Deputy Sheriff Biscailluse wants two additional deputies to help him bring back from Honduras the woman held there, if she is identified as Clara Phillips, the hammer murderess.

Appropriation for the expense of these deputies was sought today.

The state board of control has only voted an appropriation for Biscailluz and his wife, but Clara's underworld friends have sworn to free her if she is brought here. The woman held in Honduras is preparing for a stiff legal fight against extradition, it is learned. She is expected to hire Honduras attorneys to begin habeas corpus proceedings for release before the extradition papers or American officials arrive on the scene.

Money for this purpose is said to have been forwarded from Tampico. Biscailluse is to leave Friday.

CHICAGO, April 30.—After an early dip, active buying appeared in the Chicago board of trade today and all grain prices soon rallied under the leadership of corn. Heavy export inquiry, opening of Great Lakes navigation and rains holding up condition of corn in Argentina caused the advance. The early decline was due to large receipts and favorable crop reports.

The first boats to clear Chicago loaded with grain left for Buffalo this afternoon carrying 1,000,000 bushels of corn and 120,000 of wheat. Other crop and weather reports thruout this country and Canada were favorable.

Heavy rains in Argentina have held up picking and conditioning of the corn crop in that country and shipments were expected to show a falling off for a time. The shipping demand was heavy and country offerings showed no material increase, altho receipts here were larger. Commission houses bought corn freely.

Oats was the weakest of the grains and was inactive.

Provisions were higher with the hog market.

CHICAGO, April 30—More optimistic crop reports, coupled with fair weather, caused heavy liquidation in grains on the Chicago board of trade and prices declined at the opening.

Crop estimates by private experts for May 1 were encouraging. R. O. Cromwell placed the condition of the winter wheat crop at 77.3, compared with 83.5 last May 1. He said the prospective yield was 641,600,000 bushels, which is close to the acreage for the last ten years. The abandoned acreage was placed by Cromwell at 16 per cent, which leaves 38,690,000 for harvest, compared with 42,127,000 last year. The amount of abandoned acreage has been exceeded only once in the last ten years—in 1917, when approximately 12,000,000 acres were abandoned.

All grain receipts showed considerable increase, 65 cars of wheat, 125 of corn and 85 of oats being reported.

Corn and oats were both under heavy liquidation. Good deliveries on May contracts were expected tomorrow.

Grain Market Opinions.

Thomson McKinnon: European buying support is apparently withdrawn temporarily.

Logan & Bryan: We think selling fever will soon run its course.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: While some further weakness may develop today we anticipate a good reaction from the present decline.

Stein Alstryn: Prices are likely to rule nervous and earlier until the extent of probable deliveries can be more easily determined.

Harris Winthrop & Co: Liquidation was persistent.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: We prefer to make purchases on weak spots.

L. F. Gates: Important selling quite likely. May turn into a real action. What I thought Friday night was only minor reaction. Those not prepared to hold thru should act accordingly.—Lamson.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Crop conditions have slightly improved owing to warmer ground weather and rains where needed, but the moisture came too late to make a good crop in western Kansas and Nebraska. Seeding is on the northwest and with favorable weather will be finished in two weeks. Despite the recent break in prices there is a belief that values will not go very low.

The corn market looks to be a two-sided proposition at the moment. Oats seeding is nearing completion in the northwest. Country stocks are light.—Lamson.

Cromwell Wheat Report.

CHICAGO, April 30.—R. O. Cromwell says: The condition of winter wheat May 1st, is 77.3 of normal compared with 83.5% this year. This abandonment has been production of 641,600,000 bushels which is very close to the average harvested crop last ten years. The abandonment is 16% or 7,731,000 acreage which years official seeded acreage leaves 38,690,000 for harvest compared with 42,127,000 acres harvested last year. This abandonment has been exceeded only once in the last ten years In 1917 over 12,000,000 acres were abandoned.—Lamson.

Omaha Livestock Market.

OMAHA, April 30.—Cattle—Receipts 10,500 head. The fat cattle market opened out rather slow this week with buyers taking advantage of the liberal run and bid 10@15c lower on practically everything. Best heavy beeves and yearlings did not show this much decline, while on the other hand plain and unfinished yearlings were hard to move and suffered the full force of this decline. Cows and heifers were steady to perhaps a shade lower than last week, while the market for stockers and feeders was fully steady. Quotations: Yearlings, $7.50@9.00; steers, $7.50@9.50; cows and heifers, $2.50@8.25, stockers and feeders, $6.00@8.25; calves, $5.00@10.50, bulls and stags, $4.60@7.50.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Sentiment has switched among the local trade and some commission houses who express the opinion that prevailing values for wheat are sufficient for the time being in view of the prospects of a heavy carryover and a more favorable turn in weather conditions. Foreign markets are stronger than ours, however, and any favorable turn in the Ruhr situation is expected to have beneficial effect on all export commodities.—Lamson.

Stock Market Opinions.

Post & Flagg: The market apparently has struck a dead level.

Hayden, Stone & Co: Standard Oil dividend passing is to mark the safest buy here of recession.

Harris Winthrop & Co: A fairly short interest now exists.

Thomson McKinnon: Buyers should be met with liquidating orders.

Logan & Bryan: The downward tendency is likely to gain momentum, in the near future.—Lamson

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, April 30—Additional comprehensive statements of a fairly optimistic character appeared after the week-end were offset to some extent by the fact that the current fall in business expected on May caused some recessions in commodity prices.

MEN AND THINGS

The Lancaster county rural paving law has been amended upon the urgent demand of the farmers so that hereafter any road that is paved in the rural districts will not be at any expense to them. Their experience has been that it did not increase the value of their property as much as the paving cost them, and they objected to any more of it being laid. The law still retains all of the old machinery so that whenever any inheritance tax money is available the county board may proceed to pave where its judgment dictates. With the well-graded and well drained dirt roads in the county available for use the greater part of the year the farmers think that the automobilists in Lincoln ought to be satisfied, but they aren't. As a matter of fact this paving business doesn't always work as per prediction in the cities either. A man who doesn't want to sell his home finds himself paying the tax and also finds the valuation of his property for taxation increased because paving added to its value.

The legislative farm bloc held a meeting the other evening, and we read that a merry time was had. That surely is in keeping with the record of the farm bloc in the legislature. Nobody could ever tell that there was one by the way the farmers voted. If the farmers got anything at the hands of either house that amounted to more than the traditional hill of beans we would be pleased to hear about it. Practically half of the house members are farmers, active and retired. They didn't seem to be able to agree any more readily on what was good for the farming business than farmers generally do.

There is this to be said in favor of politics, that there are many bitter quarrels between parties and groups within each party, but the hatreds they engender die with the men around whom the fights were built up. Sometimes they end with the retirement from high office of one or both leaders. Can you imagine the war between the Wilson and anti-Wilson democrats and those who were followers of Taft and Roosevelt in their great quarrel being carried on two or three hundred or maybe a thousand years from now? Yet that is what is going on in religious circles in some parts of the world. The Turks and the Arabs are great on holy wars. They want to kill all others who disagree with them and yet who want to live in their part of the world. Which reminds me, will the Mohammedan women, in their new freedom, compel the men to make over their idea of heaven, which they picture as a place where there are two or three kindly-disposed women for every man?

Random remarks: Most married men enjoy witnessing the play, "The Taming of the Shrew," but most of them remark that it is so unreal. x x x I heard the other day of a man who invested in two or three blue sky companies during the boom excitement and who still thinks that he is going to get some of his money back. He is very bitter against the men who threw them into receiverships, and says that it was a conspiracy of Big Business that did it. x x x Some time ago I printed, in an incidental sort of way, a complimentary statement about a public official. In a note of appreciation he says that this was the first kindly word anybody had said about him since he had been holding the office. Do we wonder why public officials go wrong? What has become of the Flowers-for-the-Living Movement?

It may be that conscience does make cowards of us all, but the most devastating thing to a person's morale is self-pity. When a man or a woman stands around and mentally or verbally starts to telling himself, herself or others what an awfully abused person he or she is as a result of circumstances or the conduct of others, they are doing much to injure their own efficiency and destroy their own happiness. The lawyer for the prosecution can always make out a most convincing case, but the attorney for the defendant is in a better position to make his tale stronger because he does not have to stick so close to the facts and is supposed to have license to do "sob stuff." That is why nothing anybody can say about you is half so convincing to you, if you are at all inclined to be morbid, as what you can say to yourself.

There may be considerable buncombe about being the captain of your own soul and the master of your own fate, but this is undeniably true, that holding to that doctrine and fashioning your language and your conduct in accordance with it does develop the fighting spirit in a human being, and that it what makes life more worth living and determines the measure of one's success. Self-pity leads to self-delusion, or rather is a part of it, and makes a weakling of the strongest because it breads a fertility of excuse-making that saps fighting spirit makes one a prey to all evasive suggestions.

ABE MARTIN

It hurts some folks worse when an idea strikes 'em than it does when a buckshot 'em. Th' feller that used t' like a harmless glass o' beer now an' then hain't t' be pitied any more'n th' feller that used t' enjoy a nickel cigar occasionally.

WHAT DOES TED DO?

(By Walter Wehmhoff)

Same Old Shylock.

An old woman who lived in the country visited some friends in the city.

During her stay she was taken to see "The Merchant of Venice," a play she had witnessed more than thirty years before, and which she had always had a desire to see again.

Calling next day, a friend asked her how the previous night's performance compared with that of thirty years ago.

"Well," she replied, "Venice seems to have smartened up a bit but that Shylock is the same mean, grasping creature that he used to be."—Chicago News.
